THE MANAGER

OWEN COYLE

Good afternoon and a warm welcome to Reebok Stadium to everyone for today's Barclays Premier League fixture, including Paul Lambert and his staff and players, who are making their first visit to the Reebok Stadium since regaining their top-flight status, plus our match sponsors Molson Coors.

It's our second consecutive home game here at the Reebok. Last Saturday we had a first-hand experience of how clinical the Barclays Premier League can be.

We were all disappointed by the result but we know that if you give time and space to world class players they will punish you. Manchester United had seven attempts on target and five of those went in and that shows just how ruthless the very best players can be.

We have a tight-knit group of players here and they want to perform at their best for our club and our fans, and the effort and resolve that has been shown in training this week has reflected that. Everyone has worked exceptionally hard and the lads have been focused and committed - as a manager that is exactly what you want to see.

Today we will have to be at the top of our game as regardless of whoever we play in the Barclays Premier League we know that we will be in for a tough test. We have to keep working hard and creating chances and playing to the high level of quality we know we are capable of attaining.

Norwich will be doing everything they can to pick up their first victory since completing back-to-back promotions, which was a fine achievement. They will feel that they had some tough luck in their first four matches, as they have shown that they can play to a very high standard.

Paul Lambert is a manager I've got a lot of time for. He had a successful career as a player, which is reflected in the number of trophies he won, including the Champions League with Borussia Dortmund. Now, having gone into management he's shown everyone what he is capable of having cut his teeth in the lower leagues working at clubs such as Livingston, Wycombe Wanderers and Colchester United, before bringing Norwich back to the top-flight for the first time in six years.

Our reserve team were in action midweek and I felt it was important to give a number of our first team players some valuable game time. It was a successful evening and the likes of Stuart Holden, David Ngog, David Wheater and Gael Kakuta all completed 90 minutes, playing alongside some very promising youngsters in Joe Riley, Adam Blakeman, Michael O'Halloran and Josh Vela. For the senior players, getting those minutes under their belts will be very beneficial.

TUNCAY, STUART HOLDEN AND ROBBIE BLAKE IN ACTION FOR THE RESERVES IN MIDWEEK.

Finally, I would like to mention your tremendous support last week. The noise and the backing was constant throughout, and I'm sure I speak on behalf of the players and the rest of the backroom staff in showing how appreciative we are. We will need you with us again today, so thanks very much for coming and showing your support.

THE CHAIRMAN

PHIL GARTSIDE

Good afternoon and a warm welcome back to the Reebok Stadium. I'd like to extend those greetings to all directors, staff, players and supporters from Norwich City who have made the long journey up from Norfolk for today's game.

I am sure all Wanderers fans will join with me in offering our condolences to the family of Ralph Gubbins who passed away this week. It is fair to say that Ralph played a significant part in our '58 FA Cup triumph netting the goals that took us to Wembley in the semi-final against Blackburn Rovers. The fact that he was so humble about not being selected for the final says so much about the man. He was a great servant of the club, modest and unassuming, and will be remembered for his contributions on-and-off the pitch. He remained a Bolton fan even after leaving the club and he will be sadly missed.

Today we welcome Norwich back to the Reebok for our Premier League game. It's been six years since they were last in the top division and in the time since they have had mixed fortunes. Like us, having an owner who is also a fan has tremendous benefits for your club and Delia and the board have played their part to ensure the Canaries returned to the top-flight. The pyramid of English football is very competitive and back-to-back promotions is a significant achievement.

Also, thanks for all your support last Saturday. It is always tough losing a derby game but your backing was tremendous. You stuck with the team through to the end.

Enjoy the game,

Phil

TO THE REEBOK STADIUM IN 2005

THE CAPTAIN

KEVIN DAVIES

First of all I would like to thank you, our supporters, for sticking with us right to the end last weekend in what was a difficult evening for us all. Despite the scoreline, the chants were still echoing around the Reebok as the game ticked into its final minutes and that's something we all appreciate.

All we can ask is that everyone sticks with us, especially today because it is important that we get back to winning ways. One result and we are back on track – should we be able to get the win this afternoon then six points from our opening five matches isn't a bad return at all.

The first thing we did when we got back into work on Monday morning was to have a meeting and watch a re-run of the game. We looked at and analysed all the key moments and took on board all the advice on areas which we can improve. That is what you have to do as a professional, aim to improve and to learn quickly.

Yes we lost the Manchester United game by a heavy margin but there are still positives to take from last week. We created over 20 chances, 12 of which were on target, and if one of those efforts goes in then the complexion of the game changes. We do have to hold our hands up and say that defensively, as team, we weren't at our best but Manchester United are renowned for how clinical they are and those qualities were very much apparent last weekend. I think a fair assumption would be to say we didn't reach our maximum and Manchester United took advantage, albeit it with a top-drawer performance from themselves. At the end of the day, in our last three games we have faced three top quality sides, two of which could be in with a shout of scooping all the major domestic and European honours at the end of the season.

We've got to use the disappointing feeling that we have had this week as a form of motivation today. Quite simply, if we do everything that we are capable of, both individually and as a team, then we should be looking at three points come 5pm. But, equally, we can't underestimate Norwich as they will come here all fired-up, especially because they are still looking for their first win of the season.

Next week we have the Carling Cup tie against Aston Villa and that fixture brings back some good memories from my first season with the club. I think the stand-out recollection from those famous semi-final ties with Aston Villa in 2004 has to be Jay-Jay Okocha's free-kicks. The first game at the Reebok was an amazing end-to-end spectacle and in the second leg we were under so much pressure, but we managed to hang on and get through to Cardiff for the final.

There's no doubt that it's a tough draw and we would have definitely have prepared to be facing Villa at the Reebok, but there's nothing we can do about that. We want to progress and get to the latter stages and with a win at Villa Park we can realistically start to harbour hopes of doing well in a cup competition for the second year in succession. I know a trip to Birmingham in the middle of the week isn't the easiest of places to get to but I hope that we can see as many as possible of you at the game on Tuesday evening.

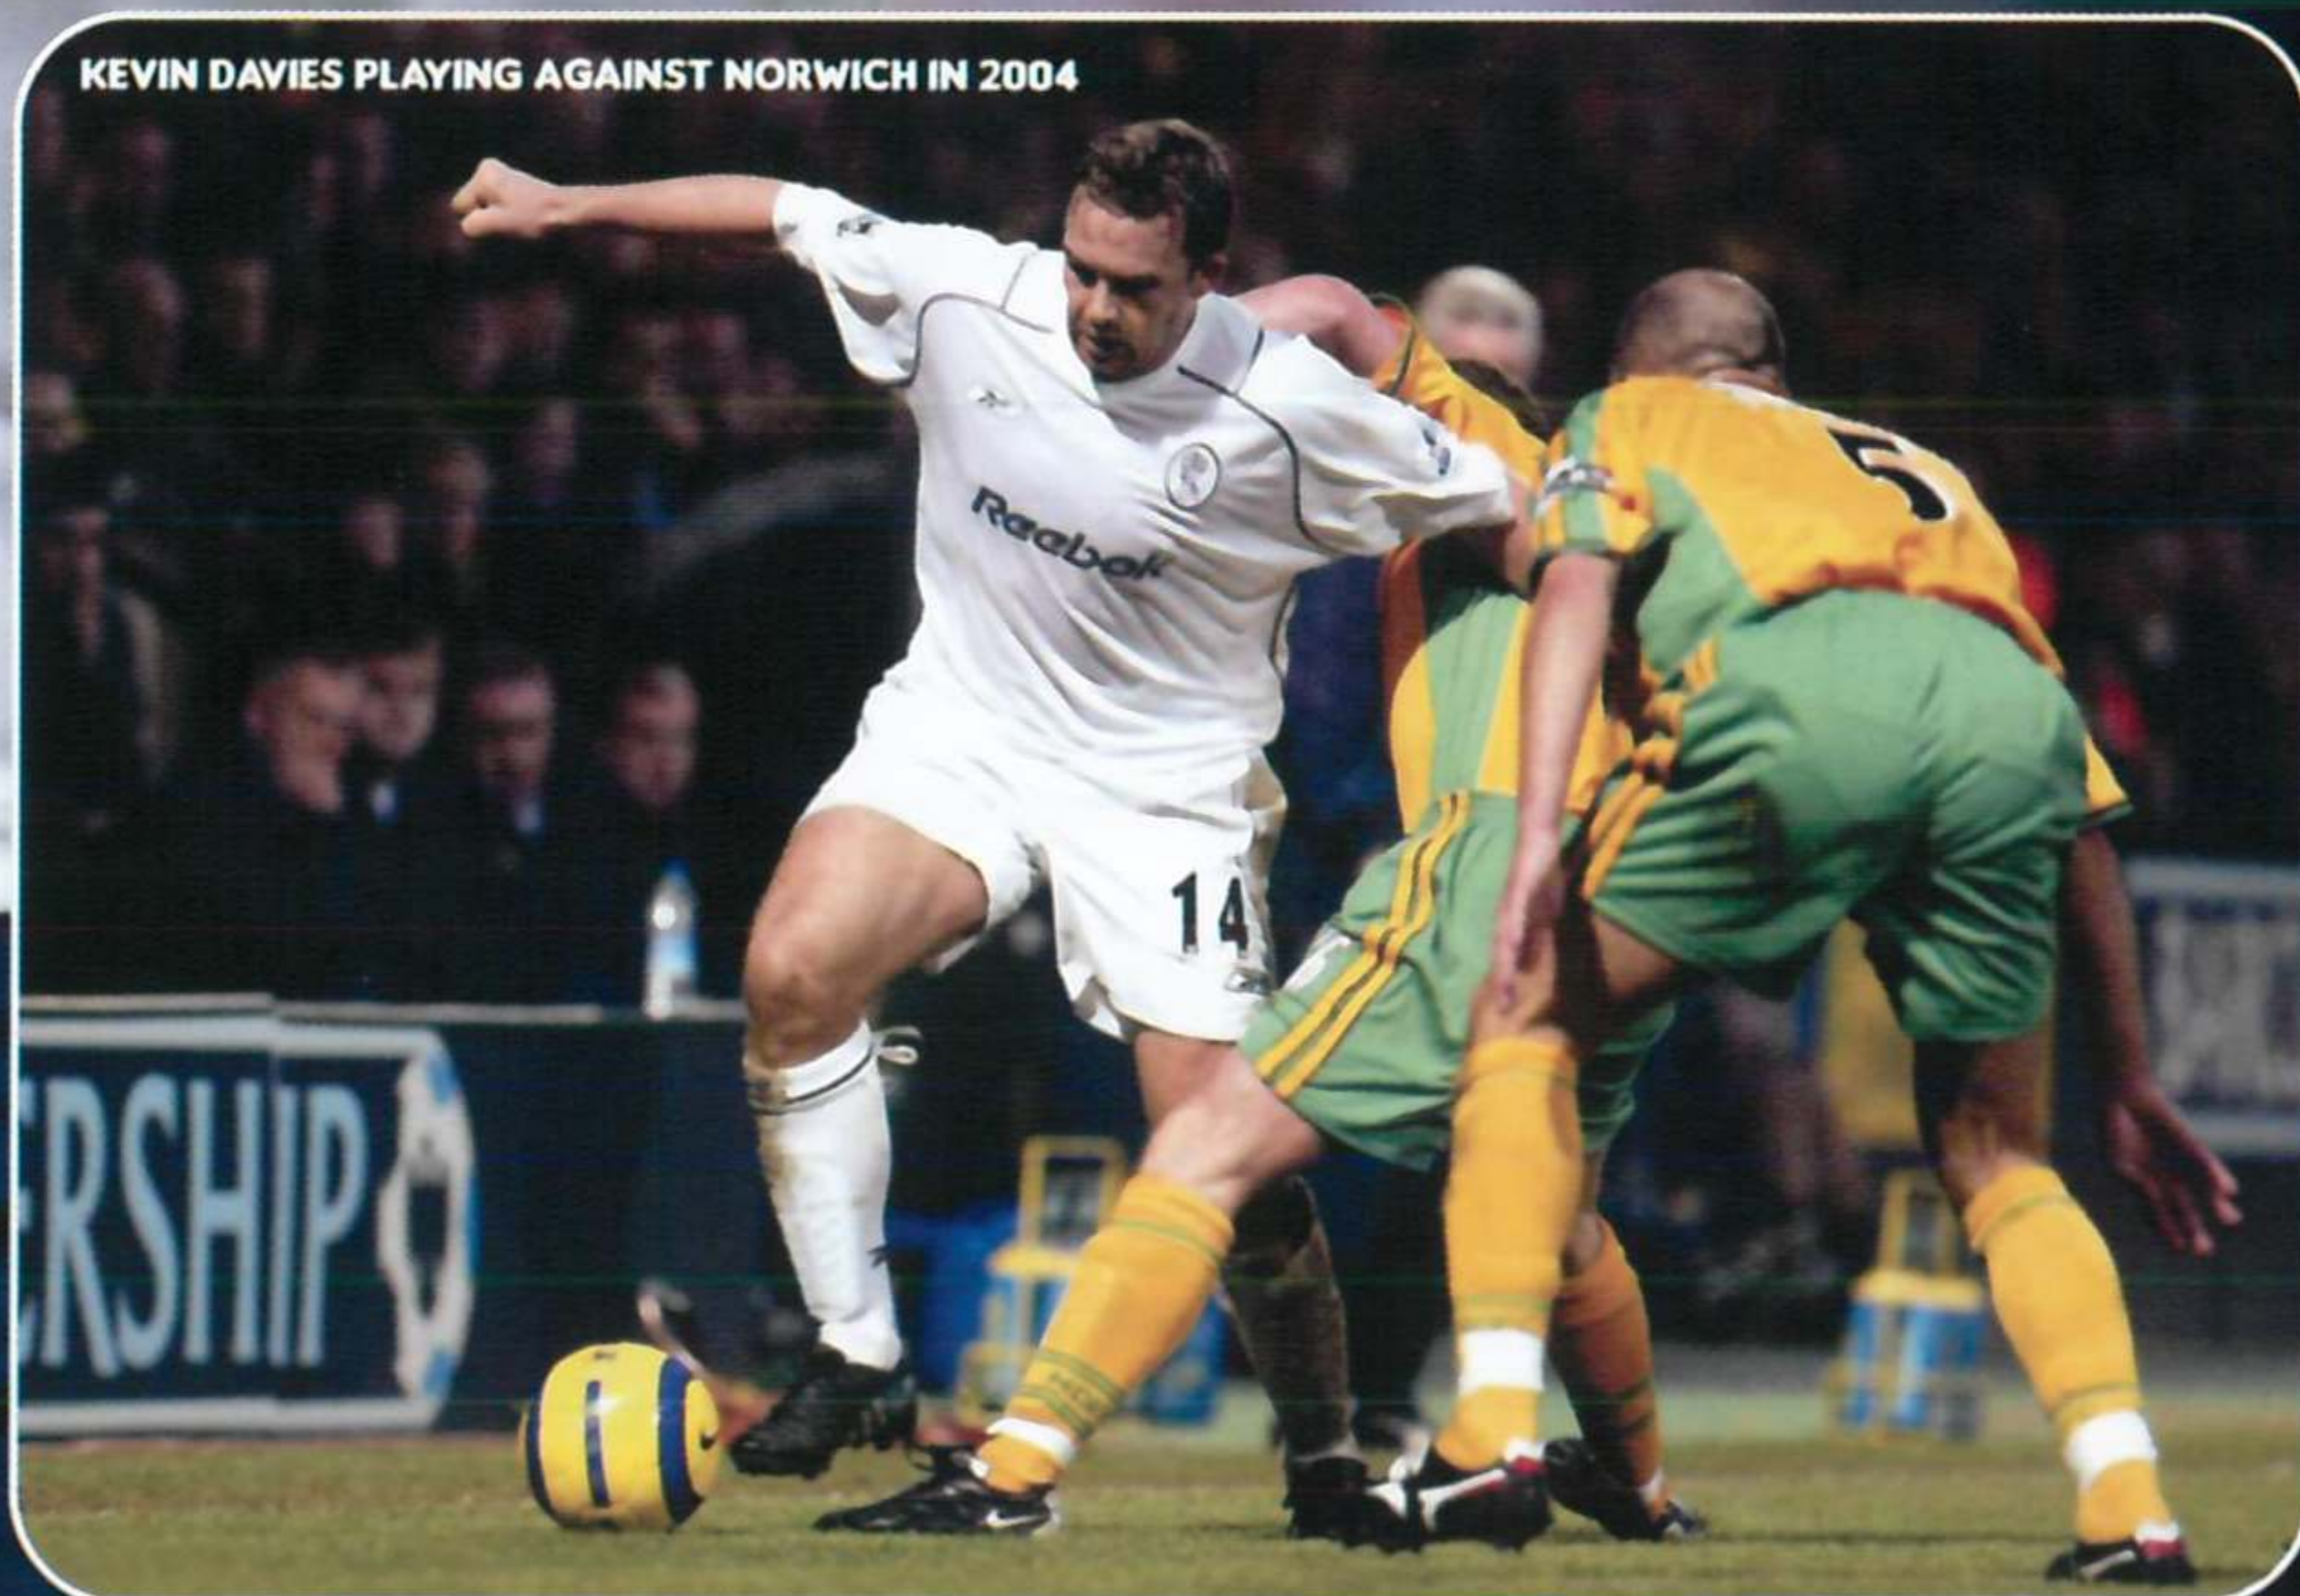

Thanks for coming along today and enjoy the game,

MATCH ACTION

MATCH REPORT

Wanderers were unfortunate to find league champions Manchester United in rampant mood, with the visitors running out winners on what was a difficult evening at the Reebok Stadium for the Whites.

Despite displaying their attacking intentions in the early throes, Sir Alex Ferguson's side were clinical when the chances fell their way in the opening half, with their ruthlessness in front of goal duly setting the tone for the remainder of the game.

Wayne Rooney and Javier Hernandez were the main benefactors, netting five goals between them.

Wanderers still endeavoured in their search to find the back of the United net in the second period, with Nigel Reo-Coker hitting the crossbar and substitute Tuncay Sanli coming close on a number of occasions.

THE GAFFER

"Manchester United were clinical and ruthless in front of goal. When you allow crosses into the box, as we did, against a side of that quality there's a big chance you'll get punished and that happened to us.

"These are world class players we're coming up against, but even at 1-0 and then 2-0, we had chances to get back into it, but when you leave yourself open you will get punished.

"Going forward we looked a threat but defensively, as a group, we could have done much better. The only way to rectify things is to get back out on the training ground, work hard and look to go and win our next game.

"I thought the fans were magnificent throughout. They gave us great support stuck with us for the duration of the game."

MAN OF THE MATCH

IVAN KLASNIC

Persisted in his efforts to breach the Manchester United defence, and was twice denied by the sprawling frame of stopper David De Gea. Looked a threat with his back to goal and linked up well with his team-mates.

IN MEMORIAM

RALPH GUBBINS

31ST JANUARY 1932 – 12TH SEPTEMBER 2011

A HERO PLAYING A VITAL ROLE AT A KEY TIME

We remember with thanks the life of Ralph Gubbins who died on 12th September at 6.40am aged 79.

Ralph represented the Club between 1952 and 1959, playing at total of 101 games and scoring 18 goals.

There are two goals he we always be remembered for during the 1958 FA Cup campaign.

Deputising at centre forward for the injured captain, Nat Lofthouse, the hero of the moment scored both goals in the 2-1 semi-final victory over Blackburn Rovers in front of a capacity crowd at Maine Road.

He then stepped aside when Nat returned from injury for the final at Wembley where he scored both goals in the 2-0 victory over Manchester United.

Ralph always said he was happy to give way to Nat commenting: "I shall be at Wembley as the 12th man and that is how it should be. I shall be giving way to Nat Lofthouse – much better man for the job".

Nat himself spoke about his team-mate saying: "I would not have scored those two goals if it had not been for Ralph's contribution in the semi-final."

Ralph Gubbins went on to represent Hull City and finishing his league career at Tranmere Rovers with an impressive 37 goals in 107 appearances.

We especially remember at this sad and difficult time his wife Margaret, his children, Neil, Susan, Julie and Roger as well as their family, Ralph's eight grandchildren and great grandson.

His funeral will take place on Tuesday 20th September, 12 noon at St Brendan's RC Church, Harwood, Bolton.

WITH ADAM BOGDAN

By Robert Urbani

First club played for?

It was a district team in a suburb of Budapest. They were my local side and I played for them up until I was about nine or ten years old.

Team supported when growing up?

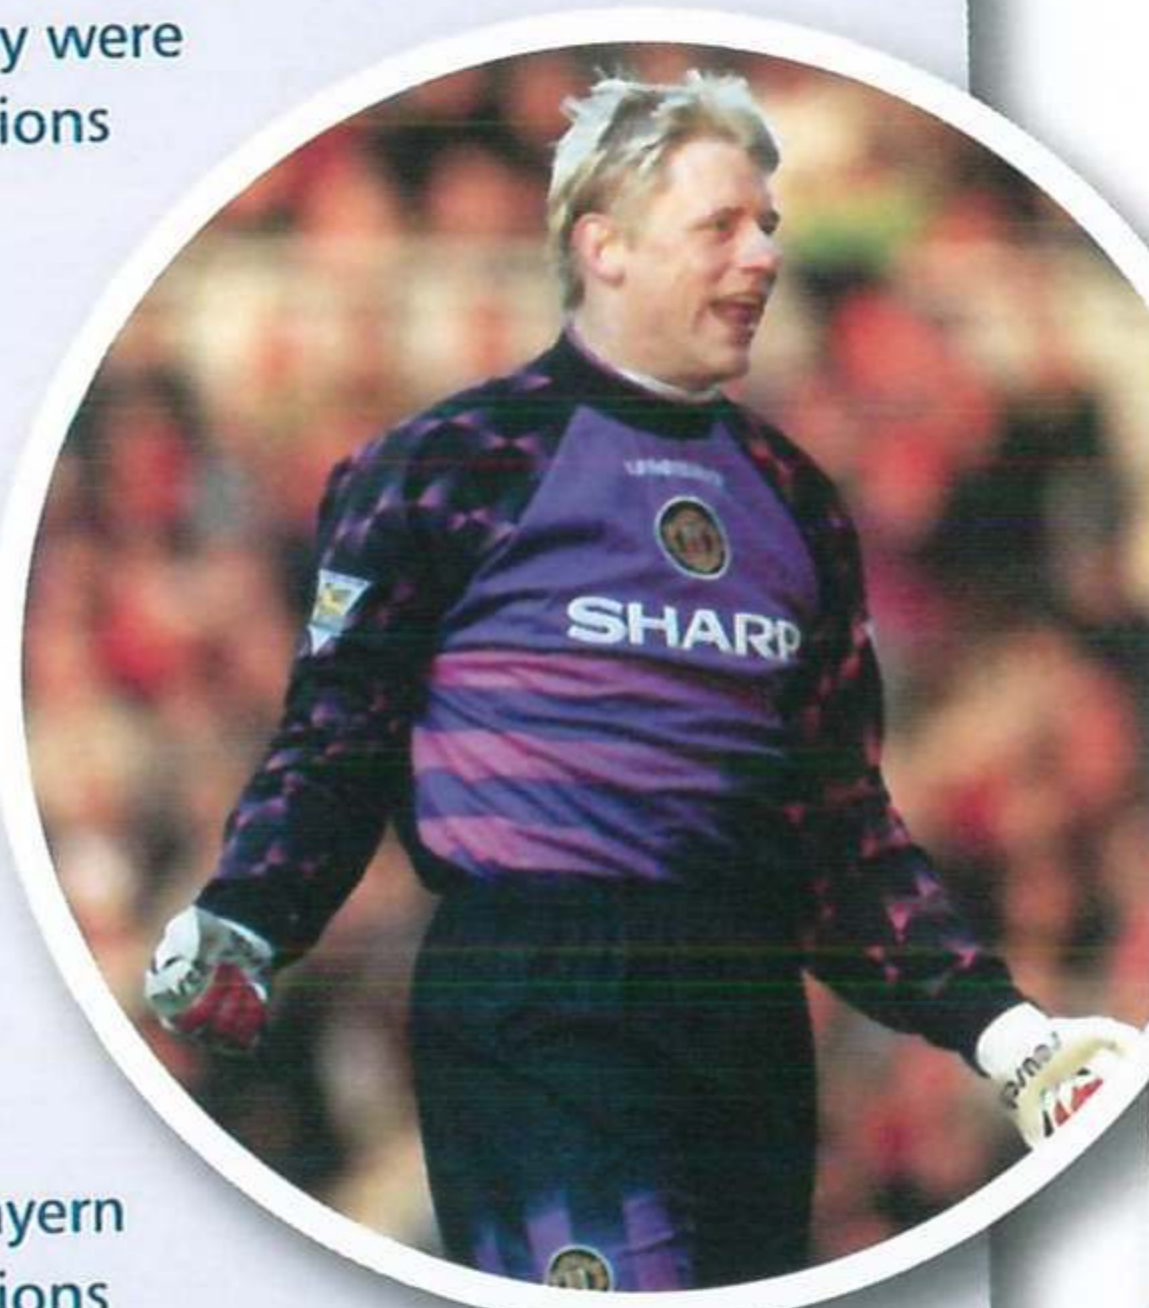

I moved to Vasas after I left my first club and I stayed with them for about ten years. I suppose I supported them whilst I was there. I also followed Real Madrid because it was the era of the Galacticos when I was growing up – they had so many amazing players. I always made an effort to watch their matches whenever they were involved in the Champions League.

Player you looked up to as a role model?

I have to say Peter Schmeichel (right) – it's an easy choice! He was massively important to Manchester United when they won the treble in 1999, particularly against Bayern Munich in the Champions League final. He had such a unique and unorthodox style – I always think of him when I see the opening credits of the Champions League programme and it shows him spreading his body in a star jump, making one of his trademark saves.

Best save ever made?

The one I remember the most is when I made my Premier League debut against Birmingham City last season and I made a save from Cameron Jerome in the last minute. It was special because it meant that we managed to draw the game 2-2 having been two goals down. I played the next game at the Emirates and I recall making a good save from Andrei Arshavin too.

Make and model of boots?

I wear Selsport goalkeeper gloves and black Adidas Predator boots.

Who or what inspired you to play football?

I'm not sure really. Like any kid growing up, I played football at school and with friends. My uncle played a lot too so maybe he had an influence.

Best ground ever played at?

Obviously I love playing at the Reebok because it is our home ground and is a beautiful stadium, but the setup at the Emirates is something to be admired. Villa Park (below) is special also – it has so much tradition and history, and when I was playing there last season I felt quite small because the four stands are so big.

Best friend in football?

I have a friend in Hungary called Novert Hegeduf who was a team-mate for many years when I was younger. He now plays his football in the Hungarian second division.

If you could be any player, past or present, who would you be?

That's a hard question. At the moment I'm pleased with who I am and what I'm doing. I'm happy with how I have progressed since I have been at Bolton, although I obviously have ambitions to play regularly in the Premier League. I really hope that can happen.

Player in the current squad you most admire?

Jussi Jaaskelainen is the obvious contender because his professionalism is second to none.

I know it's a cliché and it has been said plenty of times before, but he trains to his maximum every day and it is no surprise that he has been at the club for so many years. I also have to agree with what Gretar said in the last programme about the injured players. The lads who are sidelined work very hard, both in the mornings and afternoons, and people don't see the effort they put in to get themselves back fit. Sean Davis is a positive figure – he draws a smiley face on his trainers to keep him in good spirits.

Most memorable game for Bolton?

I'd have to say at Southampton last year because it was my first team debut, I kept a clean sheet and everything went my way. The first Premier League appearance against Birmingham was special too because I had to come into the game in difficult circumstances. There's also the match away at Blackburn last season because I was selected for a Premier League fixture even though Jussi was fit and available, and not many goalkeepers have done that in the last ten years. I only realised how big that achievement was quite a while later.

Your toughest opponent faced?

I would have to say the Arsenal team as a whole. The movement of the players and the passing into feet and down the channels means that you have to remain concentrated for the whole 90 minutes. Cesc Fabregas had a very good game when we played them at the Emirates Stadium last season.

Any pre-match routines?

There's nothing particular but like most footballers I try to do the same things before every game. I eat the same meals, try to get a good night's sleep and make sure that I'm fully prepared. There's no silly habits or rituals.

Your first car and current car?

My first car was an old Vauxhall Astra from 1997. It's a car we use in my family and when I'm back in Hungary I sometimes drive it. Now I own an Audi A3.

The last album you bought or downloaded?

I think it was the new one from the Red Hot Chilli Peppers, I'm With You.

Your favourite music artist?

Guns N' Roses. They are the most important part of my musical life!

Any television shows you Sky+?

Not really, I just tend to watch whatever is on and that's mainly sports. My missus watches the X-Factor when it is on, although I'm not too keen on that show.

Aftershave that you wear?

Mainly one called Chevignon. I don't think you can buy it from many places in England.

Your middle name?

I don't have one. My name is just Adam Bogdan.

Have any tattoos?

No, I don't have tattoos and I haven't got plans to get one either.

Your favourite meal?

I like traditional Hungarian foods really. Although the meals are delicious, Hungarian dishes aren't the healthiest so I have to make sure that I don't eat too much when I go back home.

Best place to spend a Saturday night?

I suppose it depends how I'm feeling and how the team has played that afternoon. I like to do a variety of things, such as going out for a meal or to the cinema, although sometimes I just look forward to staying in and watching Match of the Day. It also depends on what the following week's schedule is.

Your favourite holiday destination?

I went to Cyprus during the summer and had a great time. I also like going back to Hungary to see my family, but in terms of a holiday, I like going to different places every year so that I see as much of the world as is possible.

Last book you read?

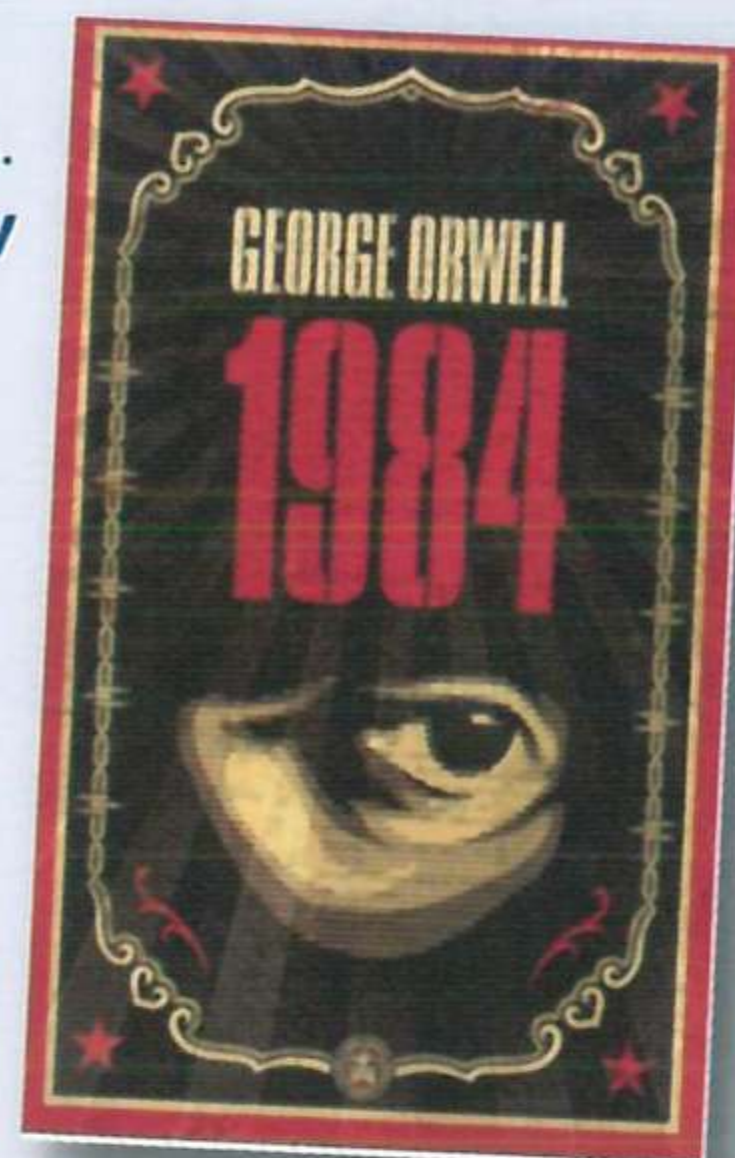

It was a book on Hungarian politics, which I found quite interesting. I also read George Orwell's 1984 during the summer months.

Are you always the early one or do you tend to run late?

I'd probably say that I get into work at the right time. I don't like being in too early because I don't like waiting around and if I'm late then I get quite nervous.

Last film you watched?

I went to the cinema to watch the Inbetweeners movie. I found it really funny.

Good at any other sports?

I used to play handball at a decent standard when I was younger. Now, I also like tennis, badminton and tennis. I'm interested in most sports.

THE PLAYER

DARREN PRATLEY

By Daniel Houlker

As web and print journalists sift through their extensive bible of footballing clichés, the term engine room seemingly goes hand in hand with midfielder Darren Pratley.

Having covered almost 12km (according to Prozone) of Reebok turf in what has so far been his only 90 minute spell in a Wanderers shirt in the game against Macclesfield Town in the Carling Cup last month, the 26-year-old's workload was a good distance above the average for a Premier League central midfielder in the month of August.

Pratley also covered more distance sprinting on the pitch in that cup tie than any other player (449 metres) at a higher intensity, again, way above the average of 228 metres for other Premier League players in the same position.

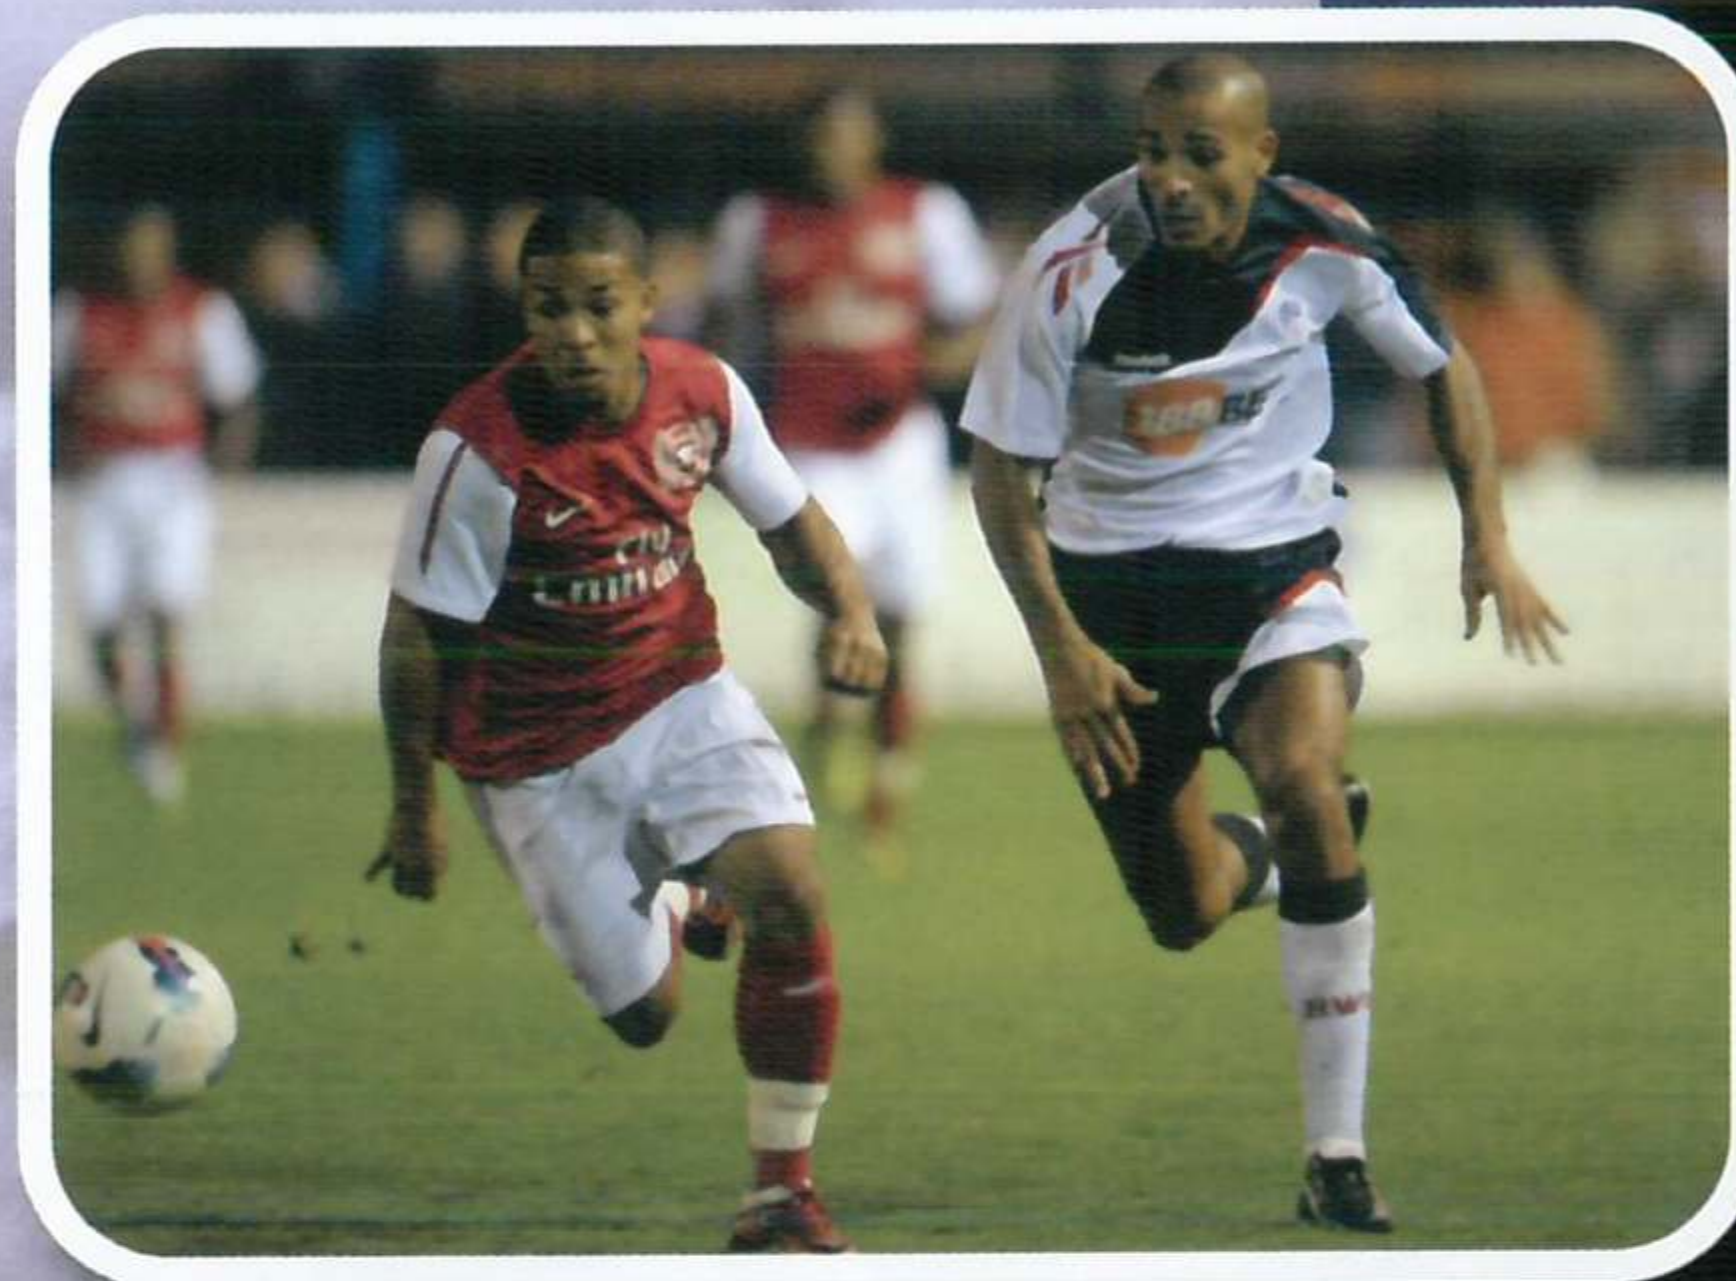

"I'll take that," he says with a smile, having yet again turned in an all-action performance in a midweek reserve game against Arsenal, a side he started his career at. "That's my game. I like to cover a lot of ground and get up and down the pitch.

"It was good and I thought the lads did well against a strong Arsenal team. Obviously, in my eyes it was good to get some game time because you can do as much training as you like, but it just isn't the same as playing competitive games."

And as a flurry of red Arsenal tracksuits bundle their way past the Barking-born man to head for their team coach on what had been a blustery, yet entertaining game at the County Ground, the matchday programme takes the opportunity to delve into Pratley's history with the Gunners.

"I've got a lot to thank them for," he explains, nodding in the direction of the Gunners' reserve team boss Neil Bandfield. "Arsenal took me out of my old school, and I was then surrounded by players such as David Bentley, Jerome Thomas and Steve Sidwell. Unfortunately a number of us didn't breakthrough and I took the decision to go to Fulham where there was more chance of regular first team football.

"As a player I used to look up to Dennis Bergkamp, so to see him in and around the Arsenal training ground was amazing. The first team players used to train on their own, but they'd acknowledge you and say hello now and again. These were players who would go onto become the famous Invincibles team a couple of years later.

"I probably wouldn't have all the aspects to my game that I have now had it not been for the way I developed with Arsenal. When I was there I got sent to England trials as a striker, but I wanted to play in midfield. I managed to get in the side as a midfielder and I think a lot of people were surprised at that."

So, does that explain the reason why the now industrious midfield man has such a keen eye for goal? (A return of 12 goals in 41 appearances for Swansea helped fire the Welsh club to promotion last season).

"Quite possibly," Pratley quips. "From being a striker you obviously want to score goals, and I think growing up that's something I've always been keen on doing."

"When I was younger I used to play as a striker and as I got older I eventually moved back into the middle of midfield. I think that decision was made by myself because I've always been quite fit and athletic and liked the idea of always being involved in the game."

Indeed, Pratley's dynamism and sheer lung power were immediately evident as he and the Wanderers squad attempted to adjust to the humid climes of Tampa during their pre-season opener. Pratley played 45 minutes of that defeat in South Florida, but an impressive individual performance was followed up with his first goal for the club three days later against Orlando SC, as the Whites kick-started their campaign.

"WHEN I WAS YOUNGER I USED TO PLAY AS A STRIKER AND AS I GOT OLDER I EVENTUALLY MOVED BACK INTO THE MIDDLE OF MIDFIELD."

More valuable game time in copious friendlies allowed Pratley to stamp his authority on the central midfield berths throughout pre-season, and after goals back on English soil against Bradford City and Hereford United many Bolton fans had already penned the former Swansea man into their starting line-ups for the season's opener at QPR.

However, boss Owen Coyle saw things differently and was vindicated as the Whites marched to a 4-0 romp at Loftus Road. As a result Pratley has been left kicking his heels on the sidelines, but when reflecting on his first few months as a Wanderer, he had absolutely no regrets about signing for the club.

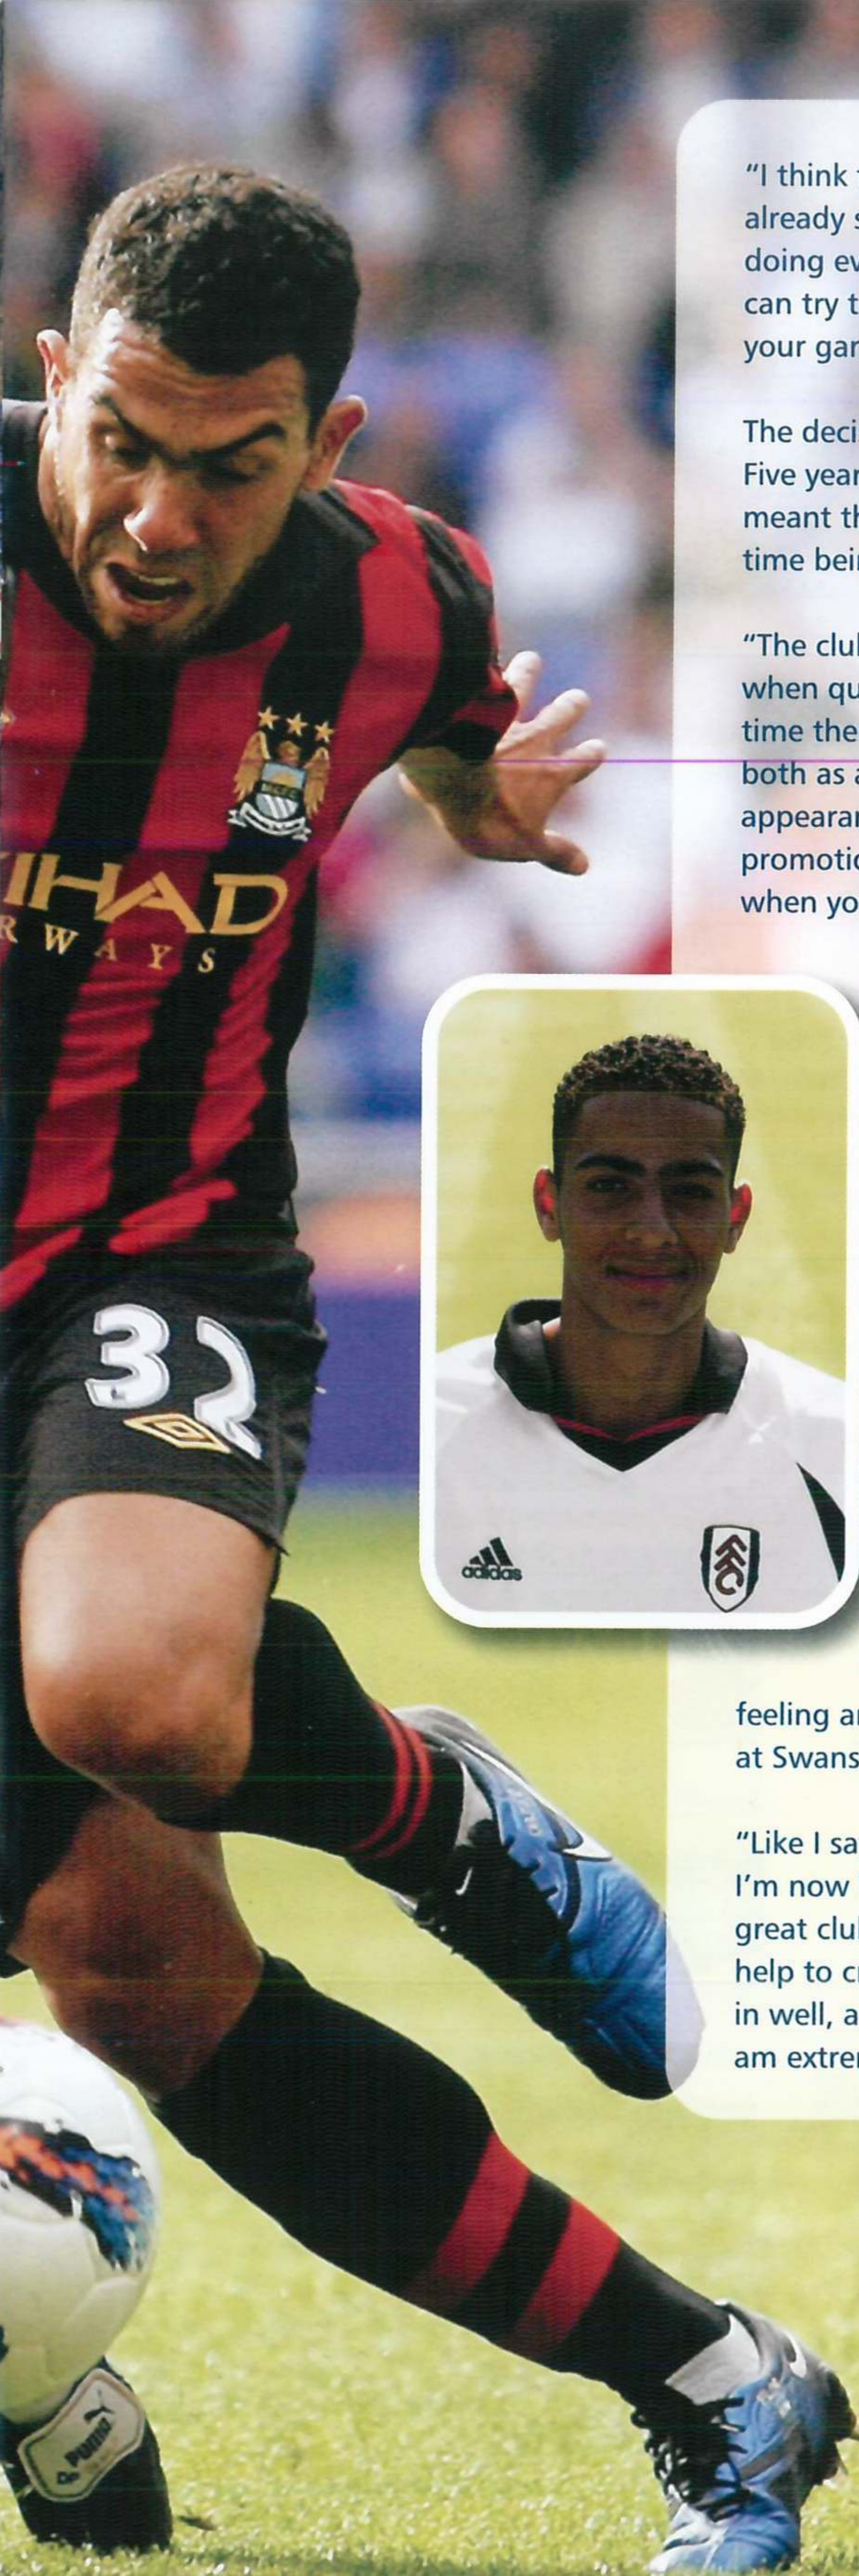

Pratley added: "It's been a frustrating start to the season because I want to play as much as I can, but at the same time you have to earn the right to play in the side and in our opening game at QPR the lads did wonderfully well.

"I enjoyed pre-season, scored a few goals and thought I did well. I've now just got to bide my time and continue to work hard in training. It's a long season and we've got a good squad, so hopefully I'll get a chance sooner rather than later.

"I've got absolutely no regrets. I could have gone to a number of other clubs, both in the Championship and the Premier League. I knew that when I signed my contract at Bolton there were no guarantees of first team football.

"I think that during pre-season and when I've come on I've already shown people what I can do. I'm not worried about doing everything I can to impress because there's a danger you can try too hard, and force things that ultimately puts you off your game."

The decision to sign for Bolton was without doubt a big one. Five years, two promotions and 199 appearances for Swansea meant that Pratley left with a heavy heart, whilst at the same time being convinced that the time was right to move on.

"The club will always have a place in my heart," he explains when questioned about Swansea. "I thoroughly enjoyed my time there and I'll always respect them for how I developed both as a player and as a person there. I think I was one appearance shy of 200 games for the club, and won two promotions there, so you're always going to have an affinity when you've got so many happy memories.

"But leaving Swansea wasn't the only big decision I've had to make. I remember when I decided to leave Arsenal to go and sign for Fulham. At Fulham I was fortunate enough to be playing regular reserve team football. I was in contact with a lot of the lads who I had been at Arsenal with and they weren't getting any game time. It was a big decision for me, but one I wasn't afraid to make.

"Playing in the reserves at Fulham was a brilliant experience. I was playing above my age group and also travelled with the first team to a couple of games, playing in the cup here and there.

"Then I had another big choice to make, because after I'd been out on loan at Brentford I got that taste of playing regular first team football. It's a great feeling and it makes you hungry for more. I felt I could get that at Swansea and made the decision to move there.

"Like I say, things went extremely well for me at Swansea, and I'm now hoping that I can replicate that here at Bolton. It's a great club and the people who work in and around the team help to create a real friendly atmosphere. That helped me settle in well, and I've now spent a couple of months living here and am extremely settled."

REEBOK ROLES – DAVE PAVELEY

Operations Manager Dave Paveley plays an important role at Bolton Wanderers, working alongside Facilities Director Jan Kozlowski. Here he talks the official matchday programme through a few key aspects of his day-to-day duties...

FIRE SAFETY

Here at Bolton Wanderers, we have to comply with the fire safety regulations. As part of that we conduct an annual audit of the Reebok Stadium, where we inspect every single room to make sure that everything is safe. As you can image it is a lengthy process and can take over a day to look at each stand. As a consequence, if any jobs are brought to our attention they are then completed, whether it is ensuring the correct extinguishers are present or if there needs to be any extra signage. We have contracts in place to service the extinguishers, plus every week we conduct a test on the break glass fire alarm system to ensure everything is working correctly. There are also designated fire marshals within the stadium, who are trained up should there ever be an emergency.

MATCHDAY STEWARDING

We have 200 safety stewards, who report for work several hours before kick-off on a matchday. They are all trained to level 2 at NVQ in Spectator Safety. They go through various training programmes covering aspects such as customer service and the management of incidents. Prior to every game they get a briefing which is unique to that matchday, informing them of particular events that might be happening throughout the day.

THE PREMIER SUITE

The Premier Suite is the largest suite that we manage at the Reebok Stadium. It can accommodate up to a thousand people and it is used for a variety of purposes, most notably on a matchday when it becomes the Fanzone. It's a fantastic facility for the club to have because it is also used to hold conferences, exhibitions, parties, weddings and awards evenings. It even hosts the UK Open darts tournament every June.

REEBOK STADIUM SECURITY

I work closely alongside Shawn Luckman (right) when it comes to making sure the Reebok Stadium is kept secure. Reception is manned 24 hours – we have receptionists during the day and security officers in the out of work hours.

The security guards have a fairly accurate set of instructions which they have to abide by. They have access to over 90 closed circuit surveillance cameras and they can monitor all parts of the Reebok Stadium. Added to that, the officers have to undertake frequent patrols around the Stadium, which includes the entire site such as the car parks too, while they also act as fire wardens, first aiders and provide a reception service during the evening and night hours.

MATCHDAY SECURITY

Security is obviously enhanced on a matchday because thousands upon thousands of fans pass through the turnstiles for every game. We have a Ground Safety Officer, Rod Cross, who ensures that safety and security is at an optimum level on a matchday.

In the corner of the South and West Stands we have the control room where everything is looked at from a different aspect, such as the pattern of the fans' behaviour. There are a range of security cameras in the stadium which can zoom in on every single supporter that enters the stadium, and these are controlled from up there. The control room is basically the communications hub on a matchday and from there important decisions can be made if any incident ever arises.

CAR PARKS

If you include all the various car parks, we can accommodate about 2,500 vehicles, whether it be coaches, cars or buses. Chris Grady is the club's Transport Liaison Officer and he works with James and John, who are our full-time car park stewards, to ensure that they are maintained to a high standard. On a matchday, however, we have a further 25 stewards to help with the parking of cars and traffic flow.

Over the last couple of winters we have had treacherous weather, which can obviously make things difficult. We have learnt from what's happened previously and we have the provisions to deal with any adverse conditions such as snow and ice. We have snow ploughs which can be fitted to tractors and we have got the car park staff trained to a level where they can drive tractors too. Also, we work closely with a company to get accurate weather forecasts, and based on that we can work out whether we will need to grit the surrounding areas. We've got a comprehensive plan should we be hit again with the weather that we had in last December.

THE STADIUM BOWL

The Reebok Stadium can accommodate over 28,000 fans and we have to ensure that they are in a comfortable environment when they enter the stadium on a matchday. I will do a walk around on a Thursday prior to the game to inspect everything, such as whether there is any litter still inside the stadium bowl or any broken seats. If anything needs sorting, we liaise with the club's maintenance team and Westgrove, our contracted cleaners, to draw up a list. During the close season we can perform work on a bigger scale, such as repainting certain areas, like the steps.

SUPPORTERS' STORIES

PAUL SMITH

By Tony Garner

W

anderers fan Paul Smith has been following Bolton

since the mid 1970s. Born in Bolton, now working in Oxford, the 39-year-old today recalls a famous incident from Burnden Park featuring a childhood hero, goalkeeper Jim McDonagh.

"Few football fans ever get to see a goalkeeper score a goal — even fewer witness a goal direct from a goal-kick. I witnessed just such an event from the sanctuary of the Manchester Road Stand in January 1983 in a derby match with Burnley.

"The scorer was a keeper who deserves to be spoken of in the same breath as Bolton goalkeeping greats such as Jaaskelainen, Branagan and Hopkinson — Jim McDonagh."

By 1983 Bolton's fortunes had been on the wane for some time and by May of that year they'd finally succumb to relegation from Division 2. A decade in the wilderness ensued. McDonagh had joined the club in 1976 and was a key man in the Ian Greaves promotion season in 1977/78 before being an ever-present in the two Division One seasons in the late 70s, playing alongside Frank Worthington, Sam Allardyce and others.

He was transferred to Everton in 1980 but by 1981 was back at Burnden and played in the relegation haunted George Mulhall and John McGovern sides of that era.

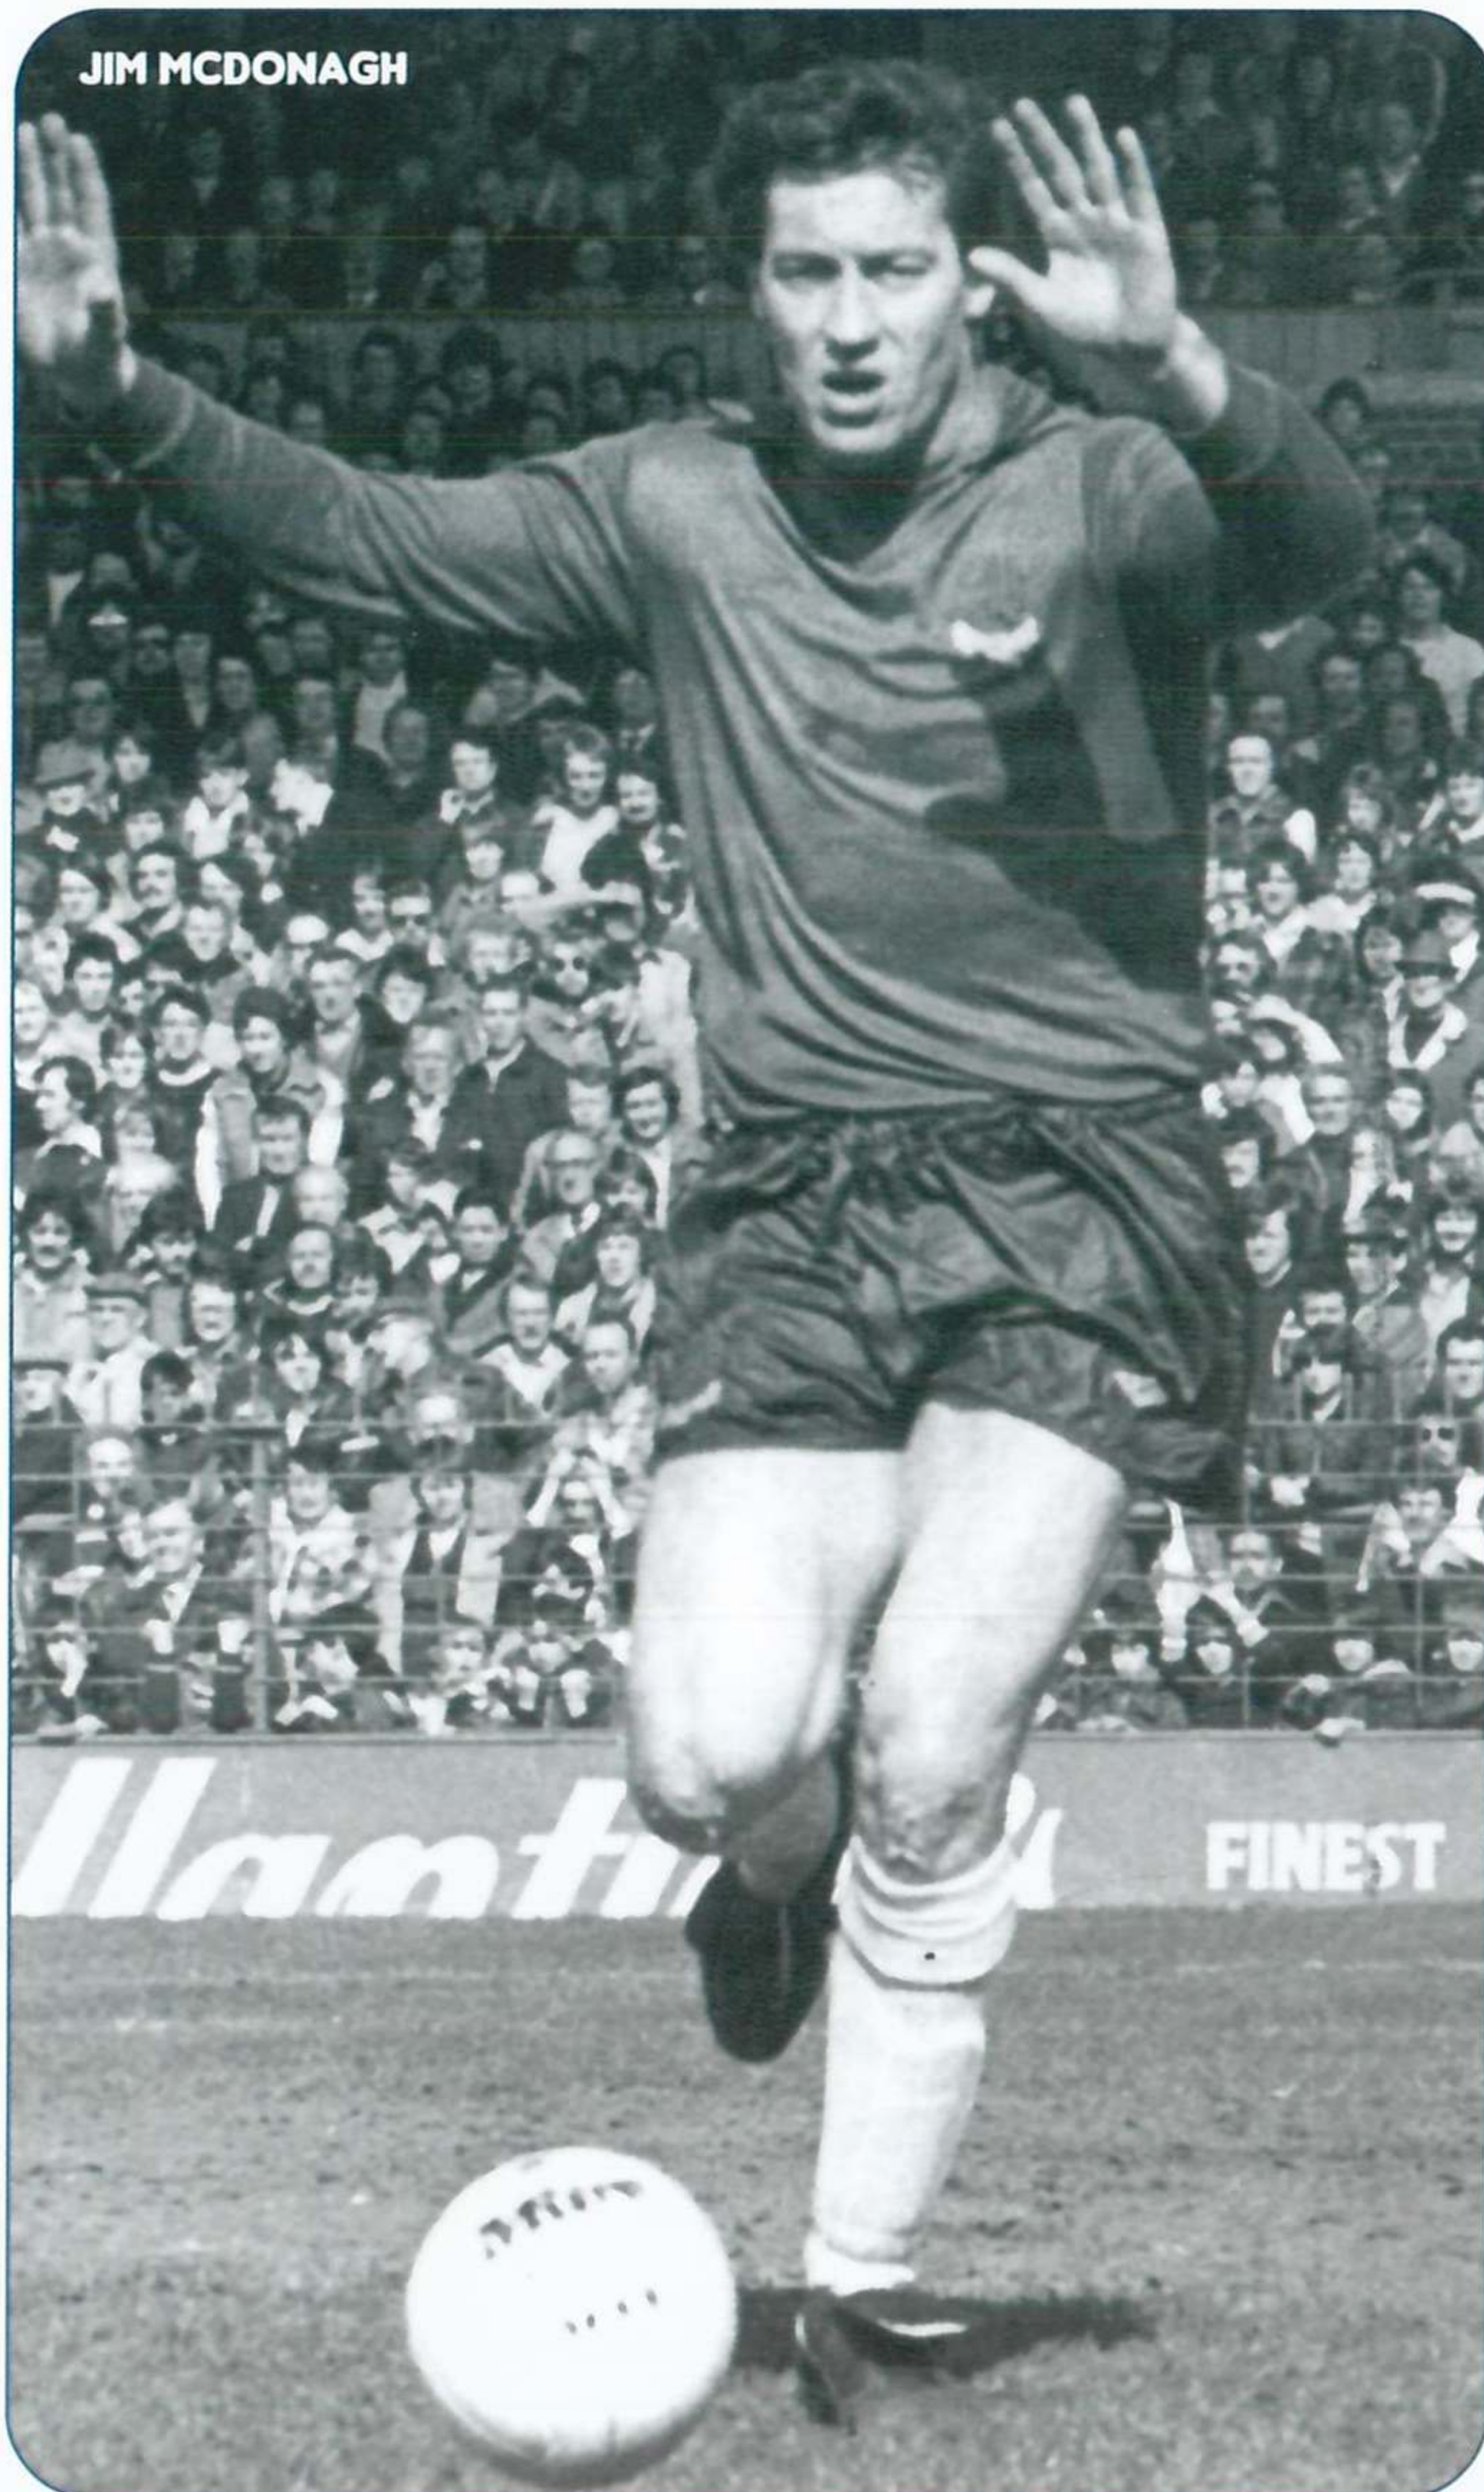

With Bolton 2-0 up at half-time despite playing in to the teeth of a howling gale, the three points seemed in the bag at home to Burnley.

"The Burnden faithful had taken to encouraging McDonagh to use the wind howling at his back to shoot for goal from a drop-kick and Jim played to the galleries by having a couple of attempts.

"Never in his or our wildest dreams did we think the impossible would happen- but another goal kick from the Embankment goalmouth caught the gusts and sailed over the Burnley keeper's head in to the Lever End goal.

"The old ground went berserk and the players mobbed McDonagh - a once in a lifetime moment that kept us Wanderers fans aglow as we trooped off up Manchester Road in the wind and the rain."

THE FOOTBALL TALKING POINT

By Andy Neild

REFEREES ARE ONCE AGAIN IN THE SPOTLIGHT FOLLOWING A RECENT GLUT OF CONTROVERSIAL PENALTY DECISIONS IN THE PREMIER LEAGUE.

DO REFEREES NEED MORE HELP? AND IF SO, WHAT?

THE JOURNALIST

You could bring in a video referee with access to TV replays or an official behind the goal as they have in European matches, but I wouldn't do either.

All it would provide is another official who has his decisions questioned – in rugby league there are still arguments even when a decision is made after a number of TV replays. Referees are never going to get every decision right, no matter what. So apart from getting the world's top scientists to explore the possibility of cloning Pierluigi Collina, I wouldn't change much.

The officials do an honest and generally good job in difficult circumstances. The best way to help them I think is ideally by trying to show them a little more understanding and protecting them better from widespread criticism.

CHRIS FLANAGAN, SPORTS REPORTER AND BOLTON FAN

THE FAN

It's a really difficult one. There's a big push for technology to help referees but I honestly think that would take something away from the game. I've been watching football for 40 years and there has always been controversial refereeing decisions – it's part and parcel of the game. I can understand the calls to introduce goal-line technology but I think the game would become too fragmented if referees were constantly going to TV replays in general play. For that reason I think they should leave things well alone.

MARK TOPHAM, WANDERERS FAN

THE PUNDIT

I've always said that referees could actually do with more help from the players themselves. We all know players try to bend the rules as much as they possibly can to gain even the slightest advantage, and by that I mean going down easily in an attempt to 'win' free kicks or penalties. If players were more honest it would make the job of a referee much easier. I also think refs would benefit from more help from their assistants. Refs can't possibly see everything that goes on during the course of a game so I think their assistants could help out a bit more in certain situations.

WARREN HAUGHTON, SPORTS REPORTER FOR TALKSPORT AND EX-PRO FOOTBALLER

THE FAN

Yes, I think referees should get extra assistance. All it would take is another official, placed close to the pitch or up in the stands, watching the game on a screen. Similar to other sports, key decisions could be referred to them and it would only take a few seconds to determine the right outcome.

I do sympathise with referees, particularly at the very top level because every decision they make is scrutinised. They have a very tough job and a little more help could make life a lot easier for them.

At the end of the day, one key decision that a referee might get wrong could end up being the difference between relegation, missing out on qualification for Europe or winning a league title for a club.

VIKKI EASTWOOD, WANDERERS FAN

BOLTON WANDERERS AND:

BY MARK HEYS

It has been quite a testing few weeks for Bolton Wanderers in their first batch of Barclays Premier League fixtures and this afternoon represents a new and somewhat unfamiliar challenge with recently promoted Norwich City coming to the Reebok Stadium.

Norwich are founder members of the Premier League but surprisingly this game will be only the third top-flight meeting between the two clubs since a Neil Whatmore goal gave Bolton a 1-0 win over the Canaries at Burnden Park in March 1980.

The only other meetings in the top division since then occurred over six years ago when a Darren Huckerby inspired Norwich won a five goal thriller at Carrow Road in a game which saw Spanish legend Fernando Hierro score what proved to be his only goal in Wanderers colours.

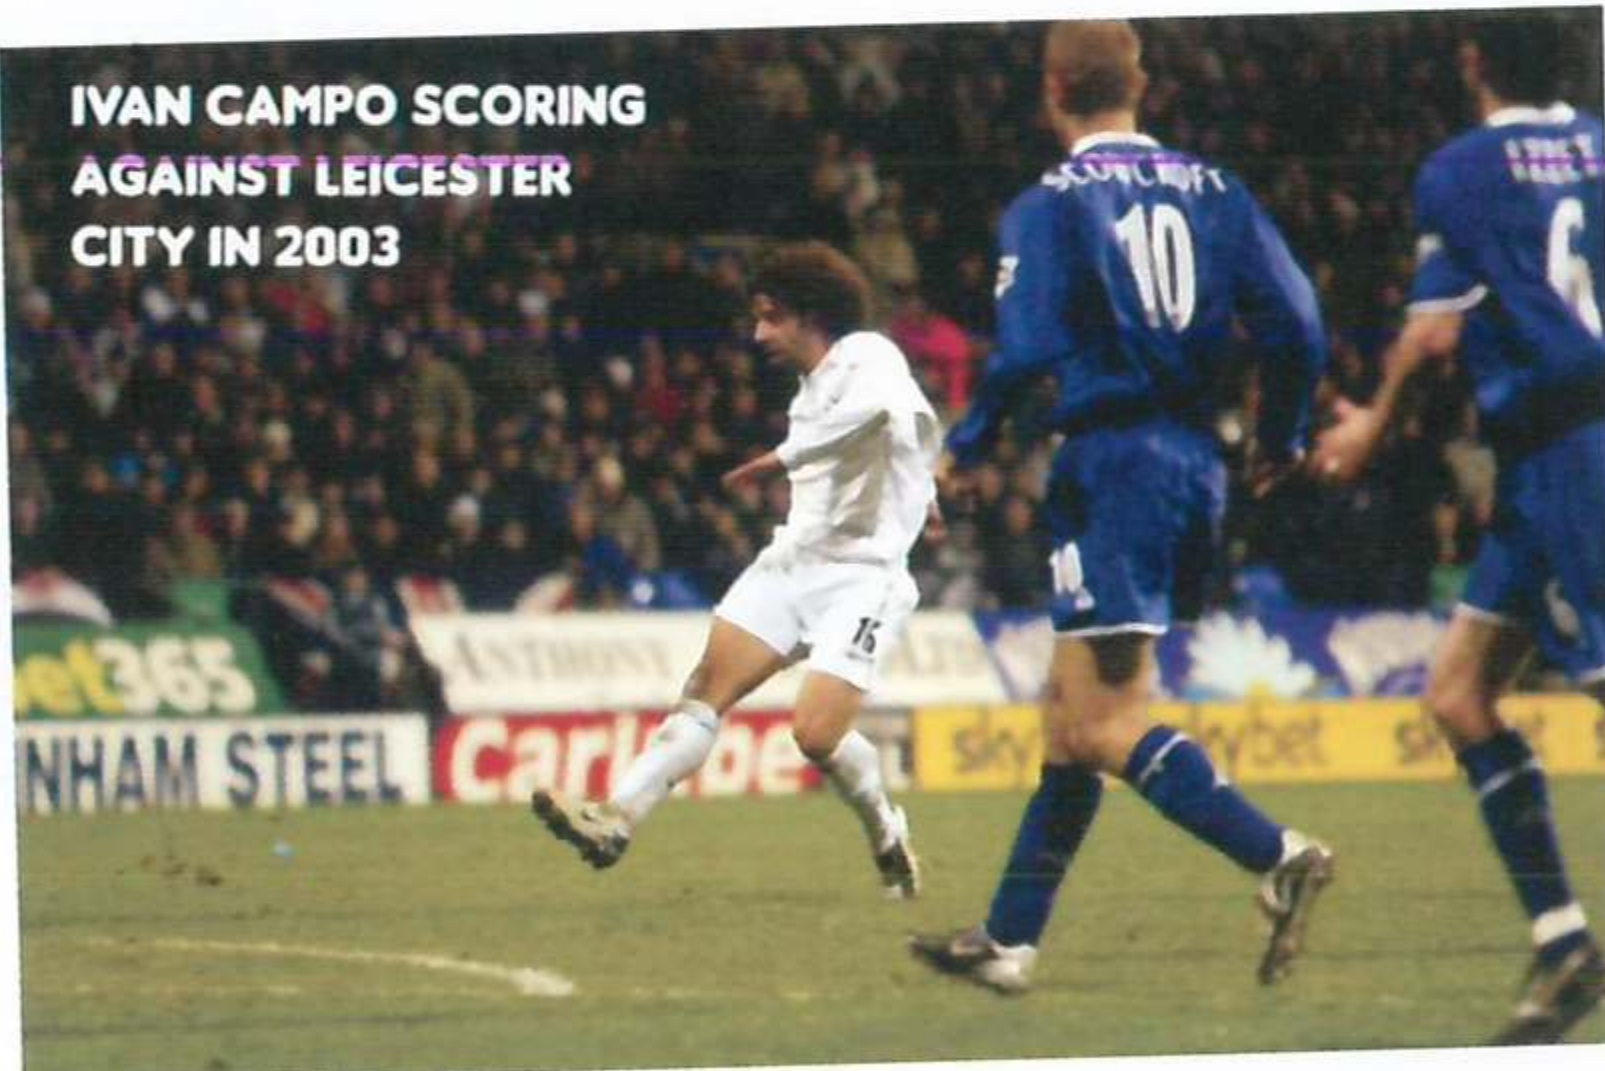

A return meeting at the Reebok in March 2005 saw Stelios Giannakopoulos fire in a goal of the season contender with a curling long-range effort that England goalkeeper Robert Green could do little about.

In the ten years it has been since Bolton won promotion, they have understandably recorded a differential mixture of results against sides who have made their way out of the Championship. In this issue we take a look back at some of the more significant games against the top-flight new boys.

When Birmingham City were relative newcomers to the division in the Spring of 2003, Wanderers had already been on the receiving end of a 3-1 beating by the Blues at St Andrews, but revenge was sweet for the Whites in the return fixture as they ended an eight match winless run by cruising to victory with a 4-2 success thanks to goals from Ricardo Gardner, Henrik Pedersen, Youri Djorkaeff and a calamitous own goal by the experienced Kenny Cunningham.

Despite having multi millions these days, Manchester City came back into the division that same season after a year away and it was Pedersen again who sent Wanderers on their way to three points with a goal against his boyhood club. Ivan Campo rounded-off the result with a fine header and this kick-started a run of results which helped the club to avoid the drop.

IVAN CAMPO SCORING AGAINST LEICESTER CITY IN 2003

The December 2003 fixture against Leicester City remains a record attendance at the Reebok as 28,353 saw a post-Christmas treat. Future Bolton striker Les Ferdinand headed home an equaliser deep into injury time after the aforementioned Campo and fans favourite Bruno N'Gotty looked to have sealed the win, cancelling out a superbly executed opener from the vastly travelled Marcus Bent.

Sheffield-born Wanderers captain Kevin Davies fulfilled a dream three years later when scoring against Sheffield United at Bramall Lane, again a game which was to end in a pulsating 2-2 draw. El-Hadji Diouf and Davies had seen Bolton good for their lead but Rob Hulse and Colin Kazim-Richards replied for Neil Warnock's side.

Struggling Derby County and current Bolton player Tyrone Mears knew their luck was out when appearing at the Reebok for the first game of 2008. The bottom of the table Rams rattled the woodwork and had the lions share of the chances but dependable Greek star Giannakopoulos was on hand to nod the ball past the onrushing goalkeeper Lewis Price in injury time for his first league goal of the campaign.

Seven months later Johan Elmander scored on his Wanderers debut to round-off a comprehensive 3-1 win over Stoke City. Right-back Gretar Steinsson also scored his first goal for Bolton against the Potters that day but doubt still remains whether the effort from the Iclander was intended as a cross or shot.

Finally in the last two years the Whites have renewed rivalries with two of their North West counterparts in Burnley and Blackpool. In the January 2010 meeting against the Clarets there was intense media coverage as manager Owen Coyle had made the switch from Turf Moor to the Reebok with his staff just a matter of weeks previous.

The Burnley following who had made their way across Lancashire where hoping for an upset but lively South Korean Chung-Yong Lee put the game to bed with a shot off the underside of the bar which just crossed the goal-line.

Last November's visit by Blackpool was their first to the Reebok and first overall in 18 years and they took a two goal lead with headers from Ian Evatt and Luke Varney. Wanderers issued a superb second-half fight-back and a well taken left foot effort by Martin Petrov was only bettered by superb injury time interplay which culminated in Mark Davies levelling the scores at two each.

MY MEMORY - NORWICH CITY

With Delia Smith and her husband as welcome visitors amongst the crowd today I promised myself that I would not refer to cooking but the temptation has simply got the better of me.

Stelios Giannikopoulos goal against the Canaries last time out was the 'a la carté' finish in a superbly entertaining game which Wanderers should have won by more had World Cup winning defender Vincent Candela not struck the woodwork on two separate occasions.

This game sent Bolton to the lofty highs of fourth and set a standard that the current squad are aiming to reach within the next couple of years.

TEAM-MATES

Wanderers' flying Korea Republic winger Chung-Yong Lee gives us the lowdown on his international team-mates.

LEE JUNG-SOO

He's a good defender who has done well and earned a move to play in Qatar. He is known for his speed and how he scores goals even when playing in defence. He scored two goals in the World Cup, one against Greece and one against Nigeria.

CHA DU-RI

Like Ki Sung-Yueng, he's another who also plays at Celtic. Unfortunately he was injured last season but I know he will be back soon. He plays the game with a lot of passion and determination and off the field he is a very good human. He links the players and the coaching staff.

PARK JI-SUNG

When I first moved to England he was very important to me and still is to this day. He helped me adapt to the way of life here in England. He has now retired from the national team but he is still a very big and popular figure in Korea. For me, it was a great honour to play in the same team as him as he has played at the very highest level.

LEE YOUNG-PYO

People in England may remember him when he played at Tottenham. He's a good friend and a very good player who has achieved a lot in his career. He now plays in Saudi Arabia and mentally he is very strong and understands the game of football from playing in a number of different countries. I think he is third in our all-time cap holders and that is a great achievement.

CHO YONG-HYUNG

He reminds me a lot of how Fabio Cannavaro used to play the game. He is a defender and not very tall, but very good with the ball at his feet. He is a very clever player and leads by example from the back.

KI SUNG-YUENG

He is my best friend in football. A very good midfielder playing for Celtic in Scotland. I'm not sure he likes the weather in Scotland, though! He has great technical ability and is very powerful.

KIM JAE-SUNG

He plays in a similar position as myself and is an extremely quick player. He is fairly new to the international side but has done well and earned himself a place in the World Cup side.

PARK CHU-YOUNG

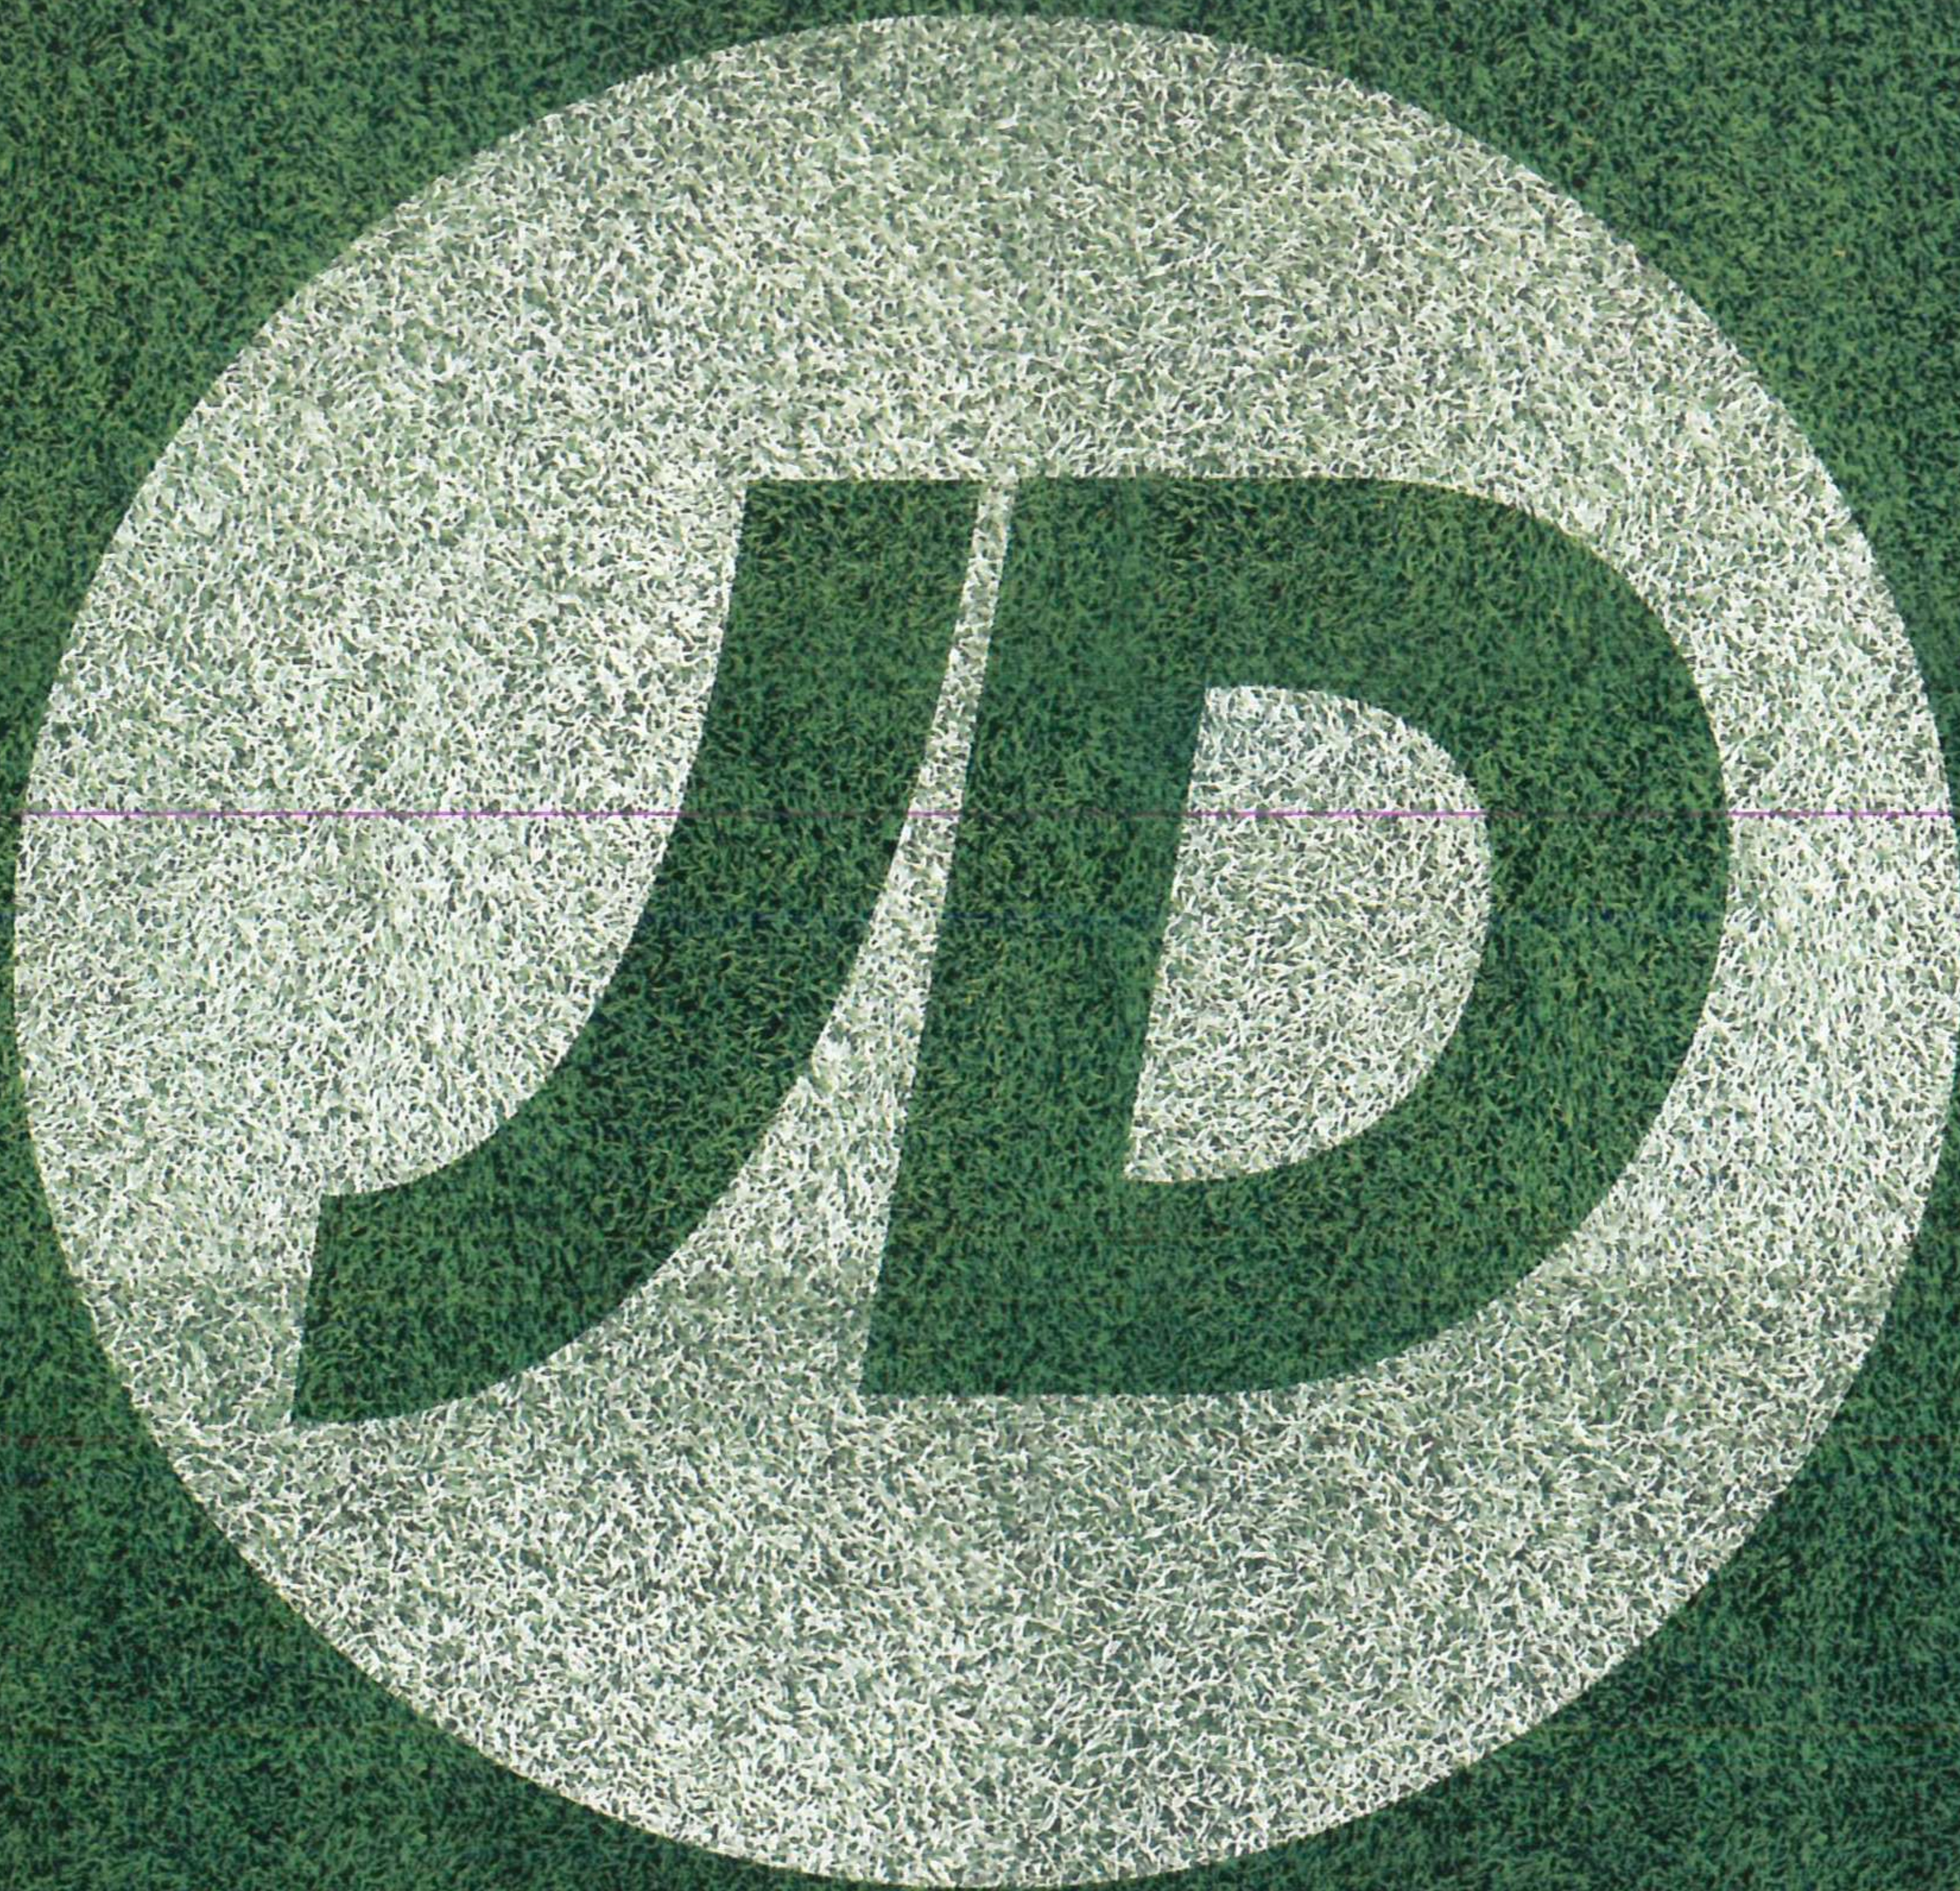

I think he is regarded as the best striker to ever play for the Korea national side. Since Park retired he is now the captain of the international side. He recently played for Monaco in France and scored a lot of goals there before signing for Arsenal. He is extremely quick and highly rated by many teams.

JUNG SUNG-RYONG

He was very unlucky to be our second goalkeeper for a long time. Lee Woon-Jae, or Spiderhands as he is called in Korea, was number one for many years but he recently retired and Jung has stepped up. He is a good age and will play for a long time I think.

KIM JUNG-WOO

Back in Korea he now plays with the army team. He is one of my favourite players as we are similar in build. He again is very good technically and has played many times for Korea.

BWFCISS PLAYER SIGNS PRO

Samuel Zimmerman had a very successful 2010/11 season under the guidance of the BWFCISS.

Samuel, who originates from Switzerland, joined the Football Studies Programme in September 2010 and quickly made an impact within the squad. He had a great attitude and had a superb athletic ability which he showed throughout the year.

Head Coach on the Football Studies Programme James Ward said: "Sam showed a real desire and hunger to improve and develop over the year. His performances went from strength to strength and he was soon getting interest from a number of clubs. Sam especially impressed during the Alcala Cup in Madrid with great performances against Real Madrid and Deportivo. Sam finished the season strongly and it was no surprise that clubs started to enquire about him."

Sam went on trial at Peterborough FC during pre season with the club asking him back to join the squad at the start of the 2011/12 season. After some thinking he decided to sign for the first team at Swiz Pro side FCE already making his senior debut a couple of weeks ago at right-back.

The BWFCISS wish him all the very best for the future!

my hometown

RICARDO GARDNER

By Daniel Houlker

I In the fourth instalment of My Hometown, Ricardo Gardner speaks about life in Jamaica, where he was born and raised prior to moving to Bolton in 1998.

Gardner has been living in England for over 13 years since making the £1m switch from Harbour View following the World Cup in France, where he shot to prominence with a series of impressive displays for the Reggae Boyz.

First of all Ricardo, can you tell us a little bit about your hometown Harbour View, and the memories you have of growing up there?

It's located on the south-east of the island and is about ten minutes away from the capital of Kingston. Looking back, I just remember spending a lot of time with my friends. Everyone would have a smile on their face and it was a great place to be and still is to this day. I remember kicking a football around the streets with my friends. There was very little organisation and we didn't often arrange specific times and dates to play, it was just whenever anyone felt like it.

If you could advice anyone on a day in out your hometown, where would you tell them to visit?

Well, a lot has changed since I was young. If I was speaking to someone who liked their sports, I'd tell them to visit the stadium in Harbour View and try and get a game in. It only holds around 7,000 people, but it's one of those places that is special to me.

There's also the remains of a fort a little further north towards the capital. It was built a long time ago and that also gets a lot of visitors.

Who is the most famous person to come from your hometown?

Err, I'm not sure, probably myself! There was a famous sprinter called Donald Quarrie, who is fondly remembered by Jamaicans for a number of gold medals at the Olympic and Commonwealth Games.

Are there any local sayings, and if so, what do they mean?

Everyone says, "one love my brother." It is often used as a way of saying goodbye. Another thing the people of Jamaica often say is, "out of many, one people." It's like the motto of the country and basically stands for everyone being together as one.

What do you miss most about being away from your hometown?

Growing up in Harbour View, at times, wasn't easy. But I'd say the thing I miss the most is the way of life. It's such a contrast compared to the lifestyle in England. Once the season in England is done I'll head straight back home and spend my summer there.

What is the local dish or meal?

Everyone eats a meal that consists of rice, peas and chicken. It's easy to cook, so I can also eat it in England. The national dish is ackee and saltfish (below). Ackee is a popular fruit in Jamaica, and it's boiled with peppers, tomatoes and other spices, then the fish is added. At the end it's all served with rice. It's really nice.

Did you support your hometown team whilst growing up?

I did support Harbour View growing up, but we used to get Liverpool games on the television back home so there was a large number of people that supported them.

What would you say Harbour View is most famous for?

Probably producing a number of professional football players. Aside from myself, there's also Luton Shelton who I played with at Harbour View. He's got a great goalscoring record for the national team and now plays in Turkey. There's also Damion Stewart (right) who played for QPR; he's now at Bristol City.

Do you have any plans to go return on a permanent basis to Harbour View, maybe when you retire?

Definitely. Like I say, it's a place close to my heart and I still have a lot of friends there. I grew up enjoying my time there, and want my children to enjoy the same experience.

Was there an unsung hero in your hometown, maybe someone who helped you get to where you are now?

Without a doubt my brother Roger 'Jupsy' Bancroft. He was always there for me growing up and used to play in the same team as me when I was younger. Also, my coach at Harbour View, Ludlow Bernard played a large part in my career. Then there was René Simões (below), who has had a couple of spells in charge of the national team. He first brought me into the Jamaica team, so I have a lot to thank him for.

Aside from football, are there any other sports popular in the area you grew up?

Cricket was pretty popular, as was basketball. They were often played on the streets with makeshift wickets and hoops. Children would put a hoop on the lamppost and we would play basketball using that.

BOLTON WANDERERS

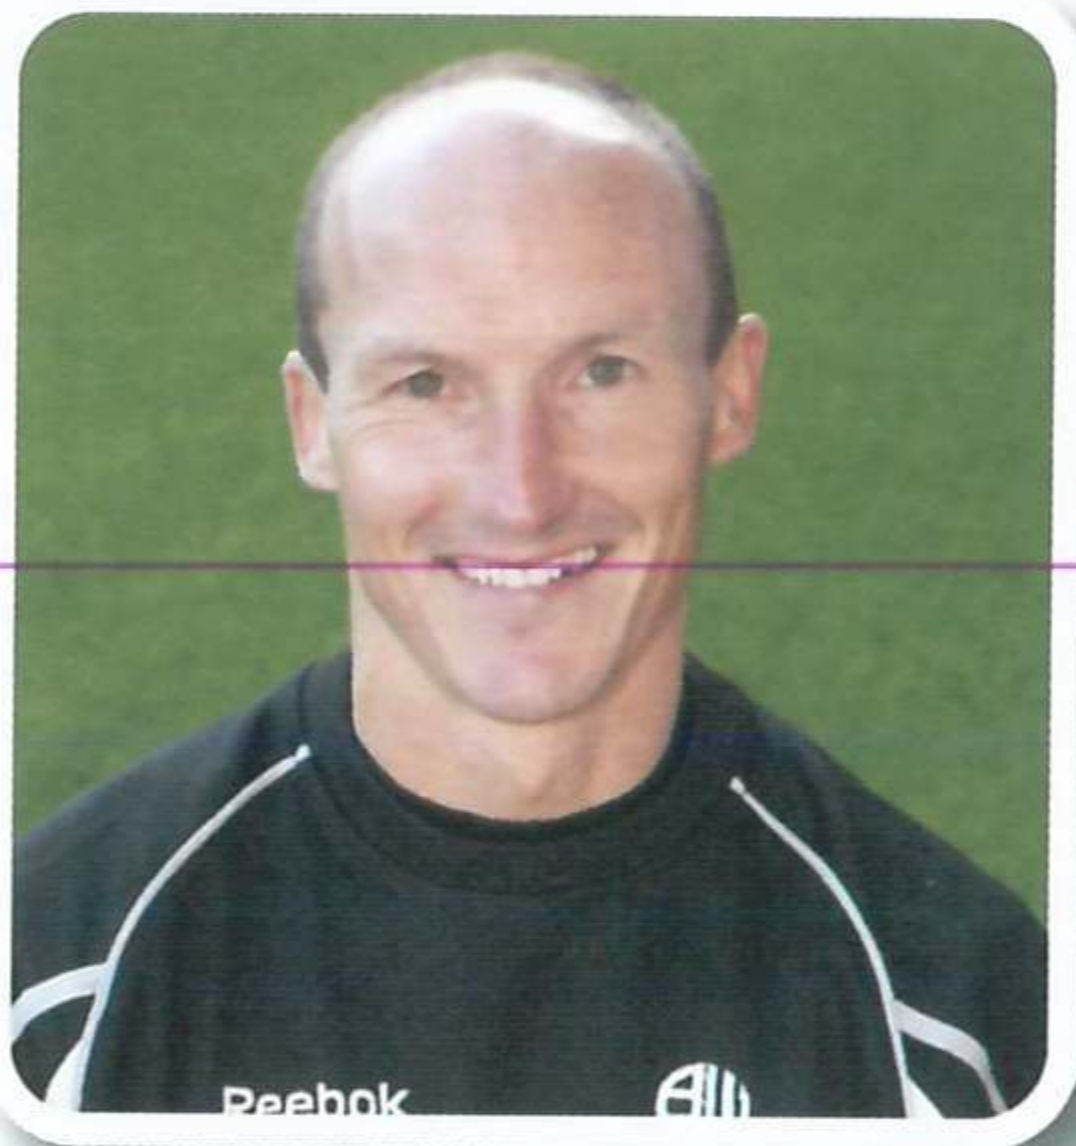

BOLTON WANDERERS UNDER-18s 1 DERBY COUNTY UNDER-18s 2

Under-18s Coach David Lee attributed the loss against Derby County to inexperience as the Rams edged Saturday's game by the odd goal in three.

Niall Maher grabbed a second-half strike to reduce arrears after the Rams had gone two goals ahead following a couple of defensive lapses

Speaking about the weekend's performance, Lee said: "We weren't at our best and the thing that edged the game Derby's way was the physicality. I'm not making any excuses but Derby played three third years which makes a big difference when we are fielding 16 and 17 year olds. One of those players had even represented their first team, so that made it quite difficult.

"We conceded an unfortunate goal to go 1-0 down - one of their strikers hit the ball against our defence and then it fell for a player to convert the rebound. The second goal came about when we tried to play offside but we got caught out through a bit of inexperience.

"We only really started playing in the last 15 to 20 minutes and when we did we produced some really good football. We created a few decent opportunities in the final stages, but if we had managed to get the equaliser then we would have probable been quite lucky.

"We did score one goal - Luke Woodland whipped in a corner and Niall Maher (right) managed to get away from his marker and score at the near post with a header. And later on in the game, Chris Lester got away down the wing, crossed from the right but Tom Youngs just failed to get a toe on the ball. Any connection and he would have scored.

"Tom has played up front for us in our games this season and has done very well. He is a natural goalscorer and is starting to learn a bit more about the game, such as the ability to read certain situations. He just needs one goal to get himself up and running and then I'm confident the floodgates will open for him. But in Tom I'm not just judging him on his goals, I'm looking at his work-rate and what he does off the ball, and he has done well for us so far.

"There were one or two good individual performances but a few of the second years needed to stamp their authority on the game. These lads are one step away from playing in reserve team football and they need to start bridging that gap.

"I'm happy with how the first years have acquitted themselves in the first month of the season and I have seen a steady improvement from each and everyone in the first four games. It is a bit of a culture shock for them to come into employment at a football club and play against boys who are a bit older than them.

"We've got Sunderland this weekend and hopefully we will have Zach Clough back available for selection. He has been out for the last couple of games and we have missed him up front. He should add some extra firepower because he combines well with Tom Youngs. Fingers crossed we can put in a performance like last season as we enjoyed a good home win against Sunderland in 2010/11."

ACADEMY

MEET THE SCHOLAR

Name:
Chris Lester

Position:

Background and Ambitions: "I signed on at the club quite late, when I was about 14 years old. I was playing for my district team in Bury and I got spotted by a scout, who I think was Dean Crombie. I played for the Under-18s a couple of times last season and that has helped me settle into everything this year.

"I was one of the first players to be awarded my scholarship last season as I found out was going to be given one in September by Jimmy Phillips. It made my last year at school much more exciting, knowing that once I finished studying and all my exams were out of the way that I would be coming into Bolton Wanderers. It made things a lot less stressful, especially when all of my school friends were applying for courses at different colleges.

"I'm from Whitefield in Bury but I've been living in digs and that has taken a bit of time to get used to. I'm enjoying the experience and I still get the opportunity to go home at weekends.

"This season I have started every game for the Under-18s, playing 90 minutes on each occasion. I already feel like I've developed as a player because I'm learning from coaches who have been there and have succeeded in the game. Results haven't really gone for us so far this season but I think the team is heading in the right direction and some of the performances have deserved more.

"During my first year as a scholar I want to improve to a point where it might be possible to get a game or two in the reserves. It happened to a few of the lads last season – you have to aim high and hopefully my performances in the Under-18s will earn me that opportunity. It would be a big step because I would be playing in open age football but any experience at that level would help me to become a better player."

BOLTON WANDERERS RESERVES 3

ARSENAL RESERVES 3

Deadline day signing David Ngog netted his first goals in Bolton colours, bagging a brace for the second string at the County Ground as John Henry's reserve side drew 3-3 with Arsenal in front of the watching Owen Coyle.

DAVID NGOG SCORES FOR THE FIRST TIME IN A BOLTON SHIRT

Fellow summer signing Sanli Tuncay netted the other Bolton goal, as the Whites twice came from a goal down to eventually take a 3-2 lead with just minutes remaining. However a late goal from substitute Luke Freeman ultimately meant Wanderers had to settle for a share of the spoils.

All in all, despite the game played in gale force winds it was an entertaining spectacle, with an added bonus for the Whites being full 90 minutes for Ngog, Stuart Holden, David Wheeler and Gael Kakuta.

The strong Wanderers line-up found themselves under early pressure, as Arsenal's patient passing philosophy was evident from the off.

Alex Oxlade-Chamberlain, a £13million summer signing from Southampton, was at the hub of the early attacks from the visitors. After linking up well with Chuks Aneke, the winger sent Oguzhan Ozyakup in the clear, and after a couple of touches should have found the net, but was instead thwarted by the onrushing frame of Adam Bogdan.

Japanese wideman Ryo Miyaichi then flashed an effort across the face of Bogdan's goals minutes later as the visitors continued to knock on the Bolton door.

However, Wanderers soon found their stride and Kakuta, making his first appearance in a Wanderers shirt since his deadline day move from Chelsea, danced his way around Carl Jenkinson with the help of a couple of stepovers before stinging the palms of Emiliano Martinez in the Arsenal goal.

And after an intriguing opening 20 or minutes, the visitors broke the deadlock, capitalising on a loose Wanderers pass in the midfield area. Sanchez Watt was the goalscorer, smuggling the ball beyond Bogdan after Miyaichi had flicked the ball into his path following a clever pass from Oxlade-Chamberlain.

As the opening 45 grew on, Wanderers' stranglehold on the game began to bear fruit. Tuncay, who operated both up front and down the right side of midfield, expertly cut infield before releasing Ngog. The French striker took a superb touch to set himself before rifling home beyond Martinez.

Just as it seemed Wanderers were in the ascendancy, Arsenal immediately pegged them back. Again, failure to hold onto the ball in vital areas cost the home side, and Ozyakup made up for his earlier miss by converting from the edge of the Wanderers penalty area.

After the interval Bolton again rallied, and with Ngog superbly operating with his back to goal upfront, linking up with a number of onrushing midfielders, it came as no surprise when Wanderers found a second equaliser.

A quick free-kick was played down the right flank, and Joe Riley found Tuncay in space inside the Arsenal area, before the on-loan VfL Wolfsburg man arrowed the ball into the net from a tight angle.

Tuncay was then at the heart of a move that saw Henry's side take the lead for the first time on the evening, as the Turkey international picked out Ngog on the edge of the area with a raking crossfield pass, with the French striker finishing with aplomb despite a number of defenders being in close proximity.

And just as it seemed Wanderers had secured an impressive result, late on Jenkinson found half-a-yard of space down the right before crossing for the onrushing Freeman who tapped into an empty net.

RESERVES

JOHN HENRY'S ASSESSMENT

Wanderers' reserve team manager John Henry has hailed the professionalism and attitude of the side that drew 3-3 with Arsenal's second string on Tuesday evening at the County Ground.

"Overall it was an extremely pleasing evening," he explained. "The conditions were again difficult, but I think that the manager was delighted with the response from the first team boys that played.

"Their attitude and application was brilliant, and that's exactly what you want to see when players come into the team.

"It helps the younger lads, who get the chance to share a dressing room with international class players such as Stuart Holden or Tuncay.

"We maybe could have won the game, but that wasn't the issue tonight. I think you may have seen one or two of the lads tiring towards the end of the game, but we were up against a top class Arsenal side.

"Tuncay showed some real flashes of brilliance. He's a top class player and he showed that. David Ngog took both of his goals wonderfully well and he'll always be a threat. I'm sure the two goals he got will be the first of many more to come for the club.

"Obviously Stuart has come through 90 minutes which is extremely satisfying and more good news for the gaffer."

time to change
let's end mental health discrimination

Imagine Your Goals is a two-year programme, funded by the Premier League and Comic Relief, which aims to improve social inclusion and wellbeing for people with mental health problems and their carers, as well as tackle mental health stigma and discrimination.

In May Bolton Wanderers invited Manchester United's Imagine Your Goals project to the Reebok Stadium for an end of season showcase and tournament, involving their teams playing each other on the Super Whites home pitch. Included in local stakeholders and partners on the day was "Looking for Eric" lead actress Stephanie Bishop, who signed the Time to Change pledge, alongside club mascots Lofty the Lion and Fred the Red. The time to change t-shirt was signed by the whole of the Bolton Wanderers first team and presented to Dominic Dowell from Time to Change.

Dementia Awareness Day (D.A.D.)

Diagnosed with young onset Alzheimer's disease at the age of 50 Norman MacNamarra thought his world had come to an end. In 2011 he wrote a story about the night sky. Looking up at the stars he noticed how brightly the stars appeared that night. He realised that the darker the sky the brighter the stars shone. He related this observation to his own Alzheimer's and considered that each star represented a light of hope for each person touched by dementia and the hope that one day a cure would come.

Sept 17th is Dementia Awareness Day, (D.A.D.) in honour of the pioneering work Norman has undertaken on behalf of everyone affected by dementia. D.A.D. is being celebrated nationally and internationally by a ceremonial release of balloons. Representatives of the Dementia Support Group will send up a balloon before today's match.

THIS WEEK AT WANDERERS

By Robert Urbani

Each issue the official matchday programme explores Bolton Wanderers stories and events from yesteryear which made the headlines during that respective week

SEPTEMBER 12, 1964:

Wanderers beat near neighbours Preston North End in convincing fashion, recording a 5-1 scoreline. Francis Lee netted the final goal and also went on to become the Whites leading scorer that season with a total of 23.

SEPTEMBER 12, 2009:

Bolton registered their first Premier League win of the 2009/10 season, beating Portsmouth 3-2 in a pulsating game at Fratton Park. Tamir Cohen and Matthew Taylor put Bolton ahead in the first-half, while Gary Cahill scored a last minute header to secure the points after Pompey had twice pegged Bolton back.

SEPTEMBER 13, 1892:

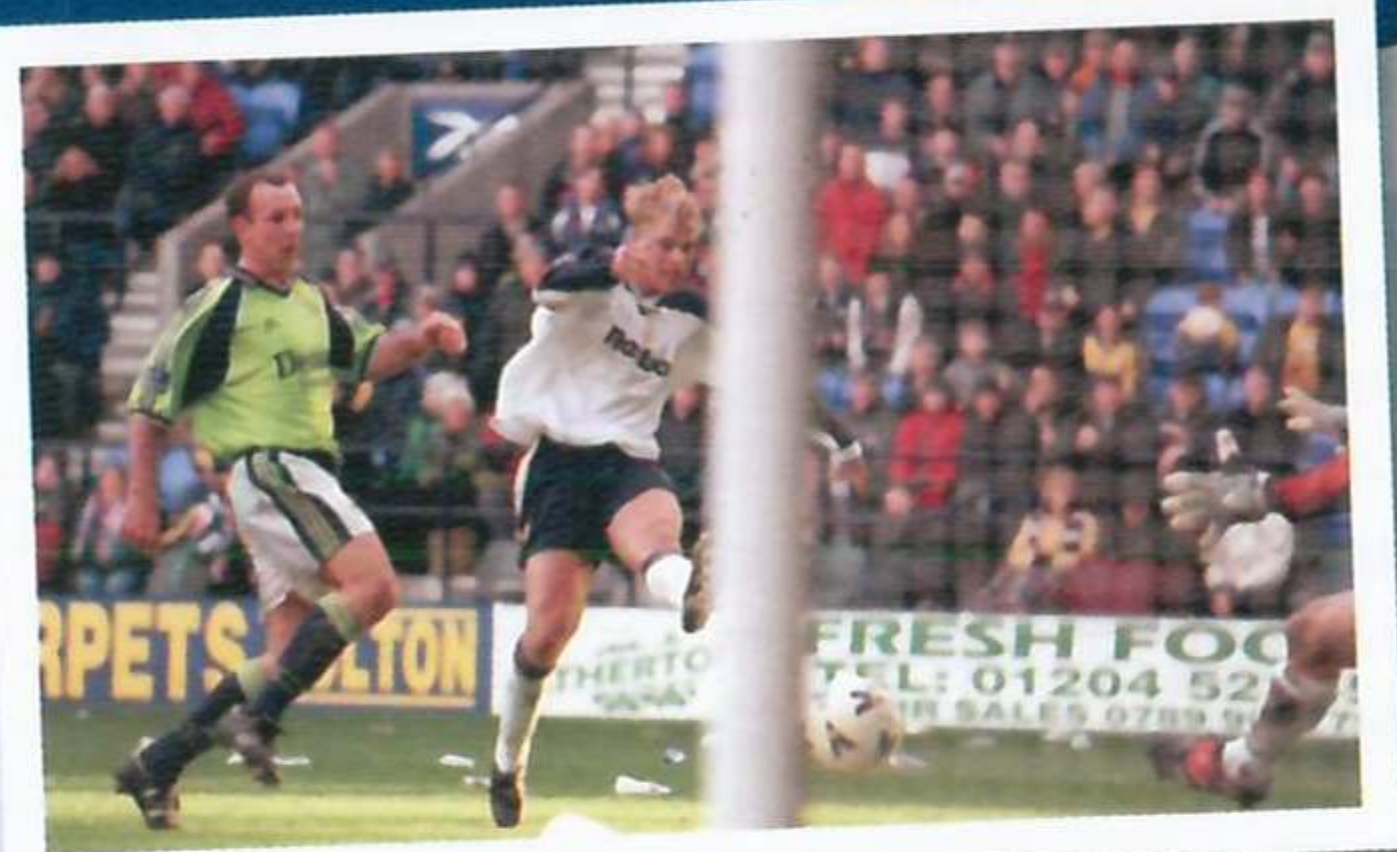

The issue of a new stadium was raised at the club's AGM, held at the public sales rooms on Bowkers Row. Ultimately it was decided that Wanderers would move to Burnden Park, which they did three years later. Burnden remained the home of Wanderers for 102 years, with its record attendance being 69,912 for a game against Manchester City in 1933.

SEPTEMBER 14, 1895:

Bolton defeated Everton 3-1 in Bolton's first ever Football League game at Burnden Park. A crowd of 15,000 attended the game and saw James Martin score the Wanderers' first ever League goal at the famous ground.

SEPTEMBER 15, 1978:

Eidur Gudjohnsen was born. The striker joined the club in 1998 and scored a total of 27 goals in 73 appearances. He moved to Chelsea for £4 million in the summer of 2000 where he formed a formidable partnership with Jimmy Floyd Hasselbaink.

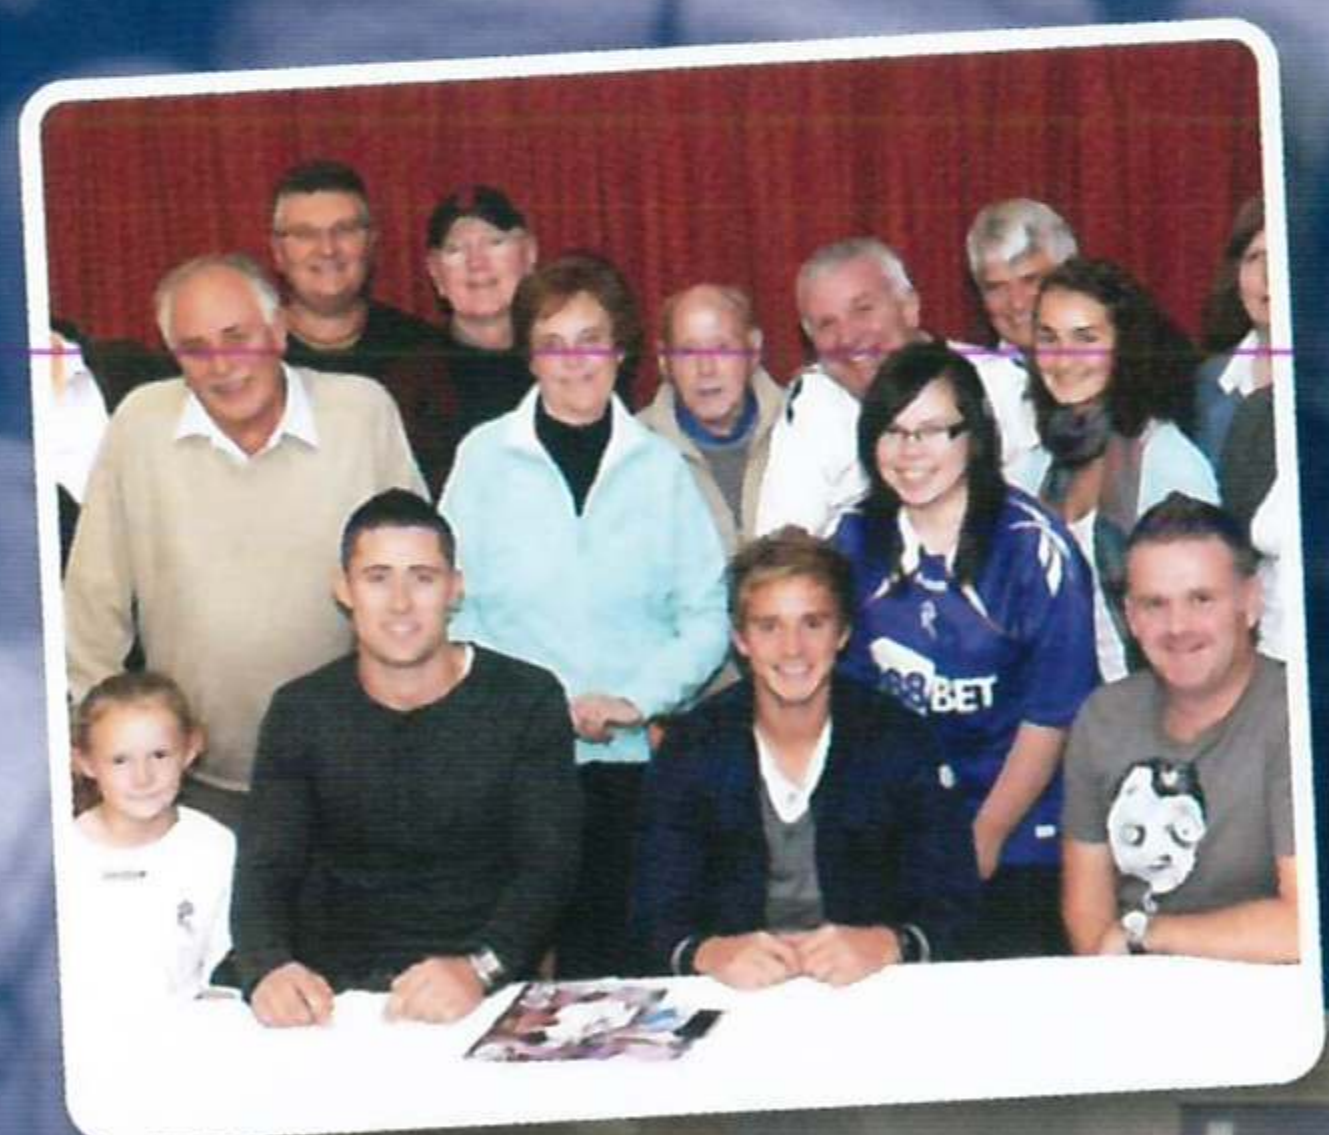

SEPTEMBER 15, 2005:

Bolton played their first ever match in the UEFA Cup, hosting Lokomotiv Plovdiv at the Reebok Stadium. The Whites slipped behind through a goal on 28 minutes from Boban Janchevski, but El Hadji Diouf and Jared Borgetti netted in the second half to help the side win 2-1. Bolton won the second leg by the same scoreline to progress through to the group stages.

SEPTEMBER 16, 1992:

Nat Lofthouse and Sir Stanley Matthews unveiled a plaque at the Embankment End at Burnden Park to remember the 33 lives lost at the FA Cup sixth round tie between Bolton and Stoke. Both legends played that fateful day, with Nat aged 21-years-old.

The BWSA is the only recognised and official Bolton Wanderers Supporters Club. It is an independent association, run for the fans, by the fans.

Members are entitled to free entry to all the BWSA social events and meetings held in the Lion of Vienna Suite on a monthly basis throughout the season. There is also the opportunity to be entered into the free competition draws where the prizes are fantastic unique 'money can't buy' items.

Members also get exclusive access to our 'members section' of the BWSA website where we will be featuring exclusive player interviews, competitions and a few surprises throughout the season.

Along with the usual access to the players and staff of Bolton Wanderers, there's the annual BWSA Player of the Year awards where every member gets to vote for their favourites, plus the monthly Newsletter. All this is available for an annual fee of £10 (£5 to season ticket holders and existing members from previous years).

For more information, please email the Association on info@thebwsa.co.uk or visit the website at www.thebwsa.co.uk

With the BWSA enjoying a record breaking year, new members are reminded to collect their membership cards and sample the first BWSA Social Evening of the season on Thursday 29 September at 7.30pm in the Lion of Vienna Suite.

The theme of the evening will be centred around the 'international' stage and guests will include David Bailey from the Bolton Wanderers International Soccer School, who will be telling those in attendance all about the club's presence abroad and what the BWFCISS actually do.

Sticking with the theme of the evening, it is anticipated that two internationals from the first team squad will also be present, speaking about what it is like to be playing at the highest level. BWSA members will be able to ask them questions about their experiences of playing all over the globe.

Media Watch with JACK DEARDEN

BBC RADIO MANCHESTER'S JACK DEARDEN CONTINUES HIS COLUMN IN THE MATCHDAY PROGRAMME.

If there are any Bolton Wanderers fans out there who are a little worried after the last three results, here's a message: Don't panic.

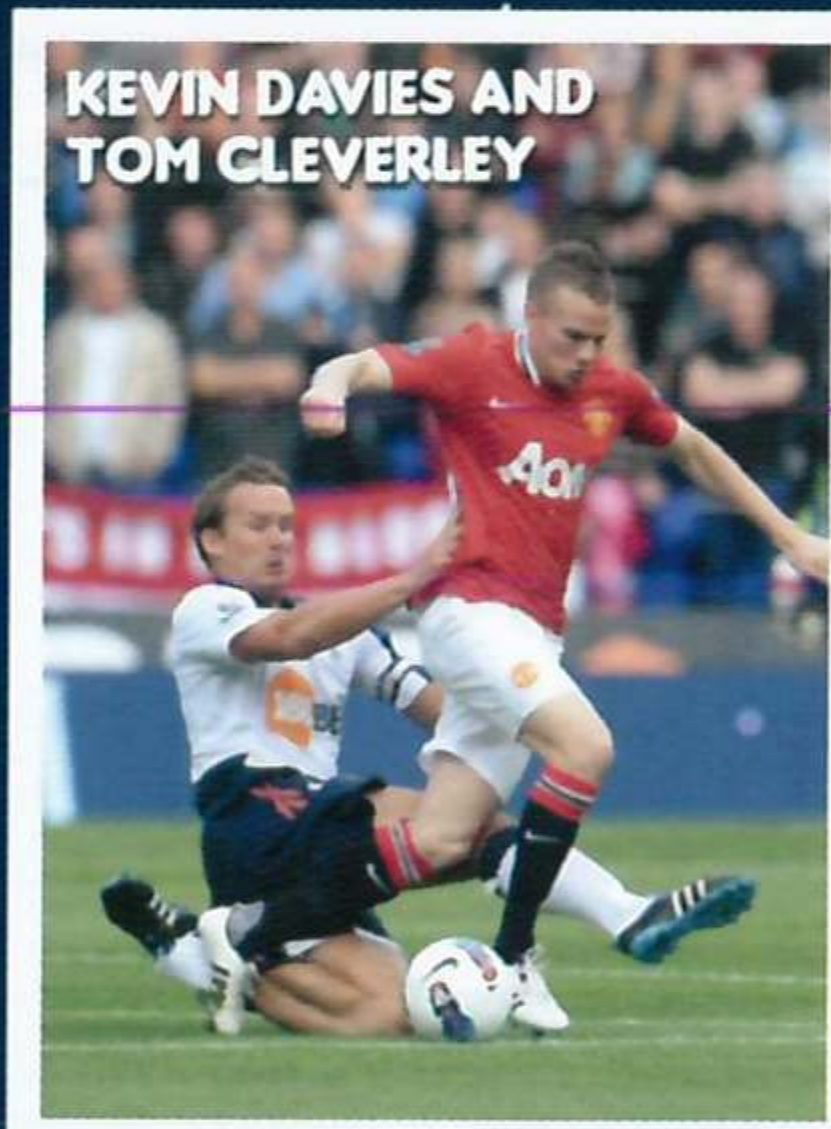

The vast majority of even-minded people will realise that it hasn't been an easy start to the season. As with previous campaigns, the club's fortunes will probably be judged on results against teams outside the top six, not the leading candidates who will be in the mix for the title and Champions League places come the spring of next year. In fact, from what I have seen in the two matches at the Reebok this season, I'd be amazed if it isn't one of the Manchester sides lifting the Premier League trophy in May.

I don't think the staggering start to the season will have helped Owen Coyle, or any Premier League manager come to think of it. We've already had two international breaks – one a few days before the first round of fixtures and another a couple of weeks ago – and there is another planned in a fortnight at the start of October. It doesn't seem appropriate when it comes to managers preparing for upcoming league fixtures, plus there's all the business with the transfer window to contend with as well. Everybody looks forward to the start of the new season and there is plenty of build-up but here we are, almost five weeks in, and yet only been a handful of matches have been played.

A lot of Owen Coyle's time over the last two months has probably been spent on the mobile phone rather than on the training ground trying to get new players in. If we are going to keep the transfer window maybe it would be a good idea to have it ending before the first competitive match of the campaign is played. To me, it just seems that there are too many distractions at the beginning of the season.

In saying that, before travelling to the Emirates Stadium next Saturday, Bolton also have a Carling Cup tie at Aston Villa to contend with this Tuesday. It's a good draw on paper and decisions will have to be made by both managers when it comes down to team selection. Would I, Owen Coyle and the Bolton fans like a good cup run? Absolutely. If Bolton beat Norwich today then they will obviously take a lot of confidence down to Villa Park. I'm pretty sure though that if we don't see much of the new signings today then we will almost certainly see them start the cup tie and get their opportunity.

KEVIN DAVIES AND TOM CLEVERLEY

There has been plenty of talk in the press this week about Kevin Davies. He has not been the first person to mistime a tackle and he won't be the last, so I think a lot of the criticism aimed in his direction is very unfair – the people who watch Kevin every week know what he is about. I'm sure a lot of people over the last two decades have always said the same thing about Paul Scholes, although whenever he made a mistimed challenge everyone seemed to laugh that off.

Finally, I know this is a football programme but I'd just like to take this opportunity to give a mention to another of my passions in life, rugby league. If you have never been overly interested in the sport I strongly recommend you put that right by watching some of the Super League play-offs which have started this weekend. It is a magnificent sport with some high intensity matches and if you want entertaining, end-to-end action then these aren't to be missed.

I think the Grand Final at Old Trafford on October 9 will be Warrington Wolves against Wigan Warriors. There are three teams, however, who I believe could provide danger and be an outside bet. Huddersfield Giants, St Helens and Leeds Rhinos are hitting form at the right time it could be that this is the year when a team from outside the top two league places goes on to lift the Super League trophy.

Thanks again for reading,

Jack.

PAUL LAMBERT

Paul Lambert has emerged as one of the brightest young managers in the business. The 42-year-old won numerous trophies as a player, winning the Scottish Cup with St Mirren as a 17-year-old, the UEFA Champions League with Borussia Dortmund, all the Scottish domestic honours with Celtic and 40 caps for Scotland.

He replaced Bryan Gunn in August 2009 as manager of Norwich, whom he led to the League One title and promotion to the Championship in April 2010. One year later he led the Canaries to promotion to the Premier League as runners-up.

The former Livingston, Wycombe and Colchester boss steered Norwich promotion to the top flight last term with a squad of players obtained mainly from the lower reaches of the Football League. He became the first coach to take a club from League One to the Premier League in consecutive seasons since Joe Royle achieved it with Manchester City in 2000.

Norwich reached rock bottom when they fell to a 7-1 defeat by Colchester - then managed by Lambert - on the opening day of the 2009-10 season. The Canaries promptly hired the Scot as coach and, only 20 months later, Norwich secured Premier League football once again.

MEMORABLE MATCHES

12/1/95 BOLTON WANDERERS 1 NORWICH CITY 0 LEAGUE CUP 5

Bolton Wanderers triumphed at home to top-flight Norwich City to reach the League Cup semi-finals for the second time. Andy Marshall tipped over Alan Thompson's shot in the opening minute, then went full stretch to grasp Mixu Paatelainen's header from the resulting corner. Bolton kept Norwich under sustained pressure, with Marshall saving well from Paatelainen and Thompson again. The Canaries responded and Rob Newman twice went close to scoring. Bruce Rioch's side broke the deadlock after 66 minutes when David Lee scored a fine individual goal. Keith Branagan made several fine saves during the closing stages.

7/5/00 BOLTON WANDERERS 1 NORWICH CITY 0 DIVISION 1

Bolton Wanderers secured the final play-off place after this narrow victory at home to Norwich City. Iwan Roberts and ex-Bolton loanee Gaetano Giallanza came close to heading the visitors in front from free-kicks by Phil Mulryne, while Roberts hit the bar with a 25 yard shot. Chris Llewellyn hit the woodwork in the second half as he tried to clear before Bolton's sustained spell of pressure brought reward. A throw-in by Robbie Elliott was headed on by Mike Whitlow and Dean Holdsworth poked the ball home on 77 minutes. An injury to Matt Jackson after three substitutions forced Norwich to play the last ten minutes a man down.

24/11/07 BOLTON WANDERERS 1 NORWICH CITY 0 PREMIER LEAGUE

Bolton Wanderers moved up to fifth place in the Premier League after beating Norwich City at the Reebok Stadium. Sam Allardyce's team had won six of their previous eight games and with Fernando Hierro as their linchpin, they dominated the match throughout. The decisive goal came on 42 minutes when Marc Edworthy headed Stelios Giannakopoulos' corner straight back to the Greek winger who then curled a great shot into Robert Green's net. Vincent Candela struck the bar with a 25 yard drive a minute later. Damien Francis spurned two clear-cut chances as Norwich hit back but Wanderers held out for a deserved victory.

THE GROUNDS

Norwich City played at Newmarket Road for the first six years of their existence before moving to The Nest in 1908. Norwich gained a record 10-2 League victory over Coventry City in March 1930. The first floodlit match there was a friendly against Sunderland in October 1956. The main stand at Carrow Road was destroyed by fire in October 1984.

JEREMY GOSS EXCLUSIVE

GOSS: CANARIES CAN STAY UP NORWICH LEGEND BACKS LAMBERT'S MEN TO PROSPER

73

Jeremy Goss' penchant for scoring spectacular goals for Norwich during the early to mid-Nineties earned him cult status at Carrow Road.

The former midfielder, 46, played for the Canaries between 1984 and 1996 and was hugely instrumental in the Norwich side who took Europe by storm. Under the guidance of Mike Walker, the Norfolk outfit finished third – the club's highest-ever finish – in the inaugural Premier League in 1992/93. That ensured they played in the UEFA Cup the following season, a campaign which went down in Norwich folklore for so many reasons.

The Canaries dumped Dutch outfit Vitesse Arnhem out in the first round and then sent shockwaves throughout the continent when winning 2-1 at Bayern Munich in the second round first leg. Goss hit a brilliant volley and Mark Bowen was also on target before the second leg saw Norwich hold the German giants, who had a squad full of international stars including World Cup winner Lothar Matthaus, to a 1-1 draw. That saw them progress to the third round where they faced the might of Inter Milan, losing 2-0 on aggregate. The Norwich side featured Bryan Gunn in goal, Ian Culverhouse, Bowen and Ian Butterworth in defence and players such as Ian Crook, Ruel Fox and Goss in midfield. A young Chris Sutton and Mark Robins led the attack.

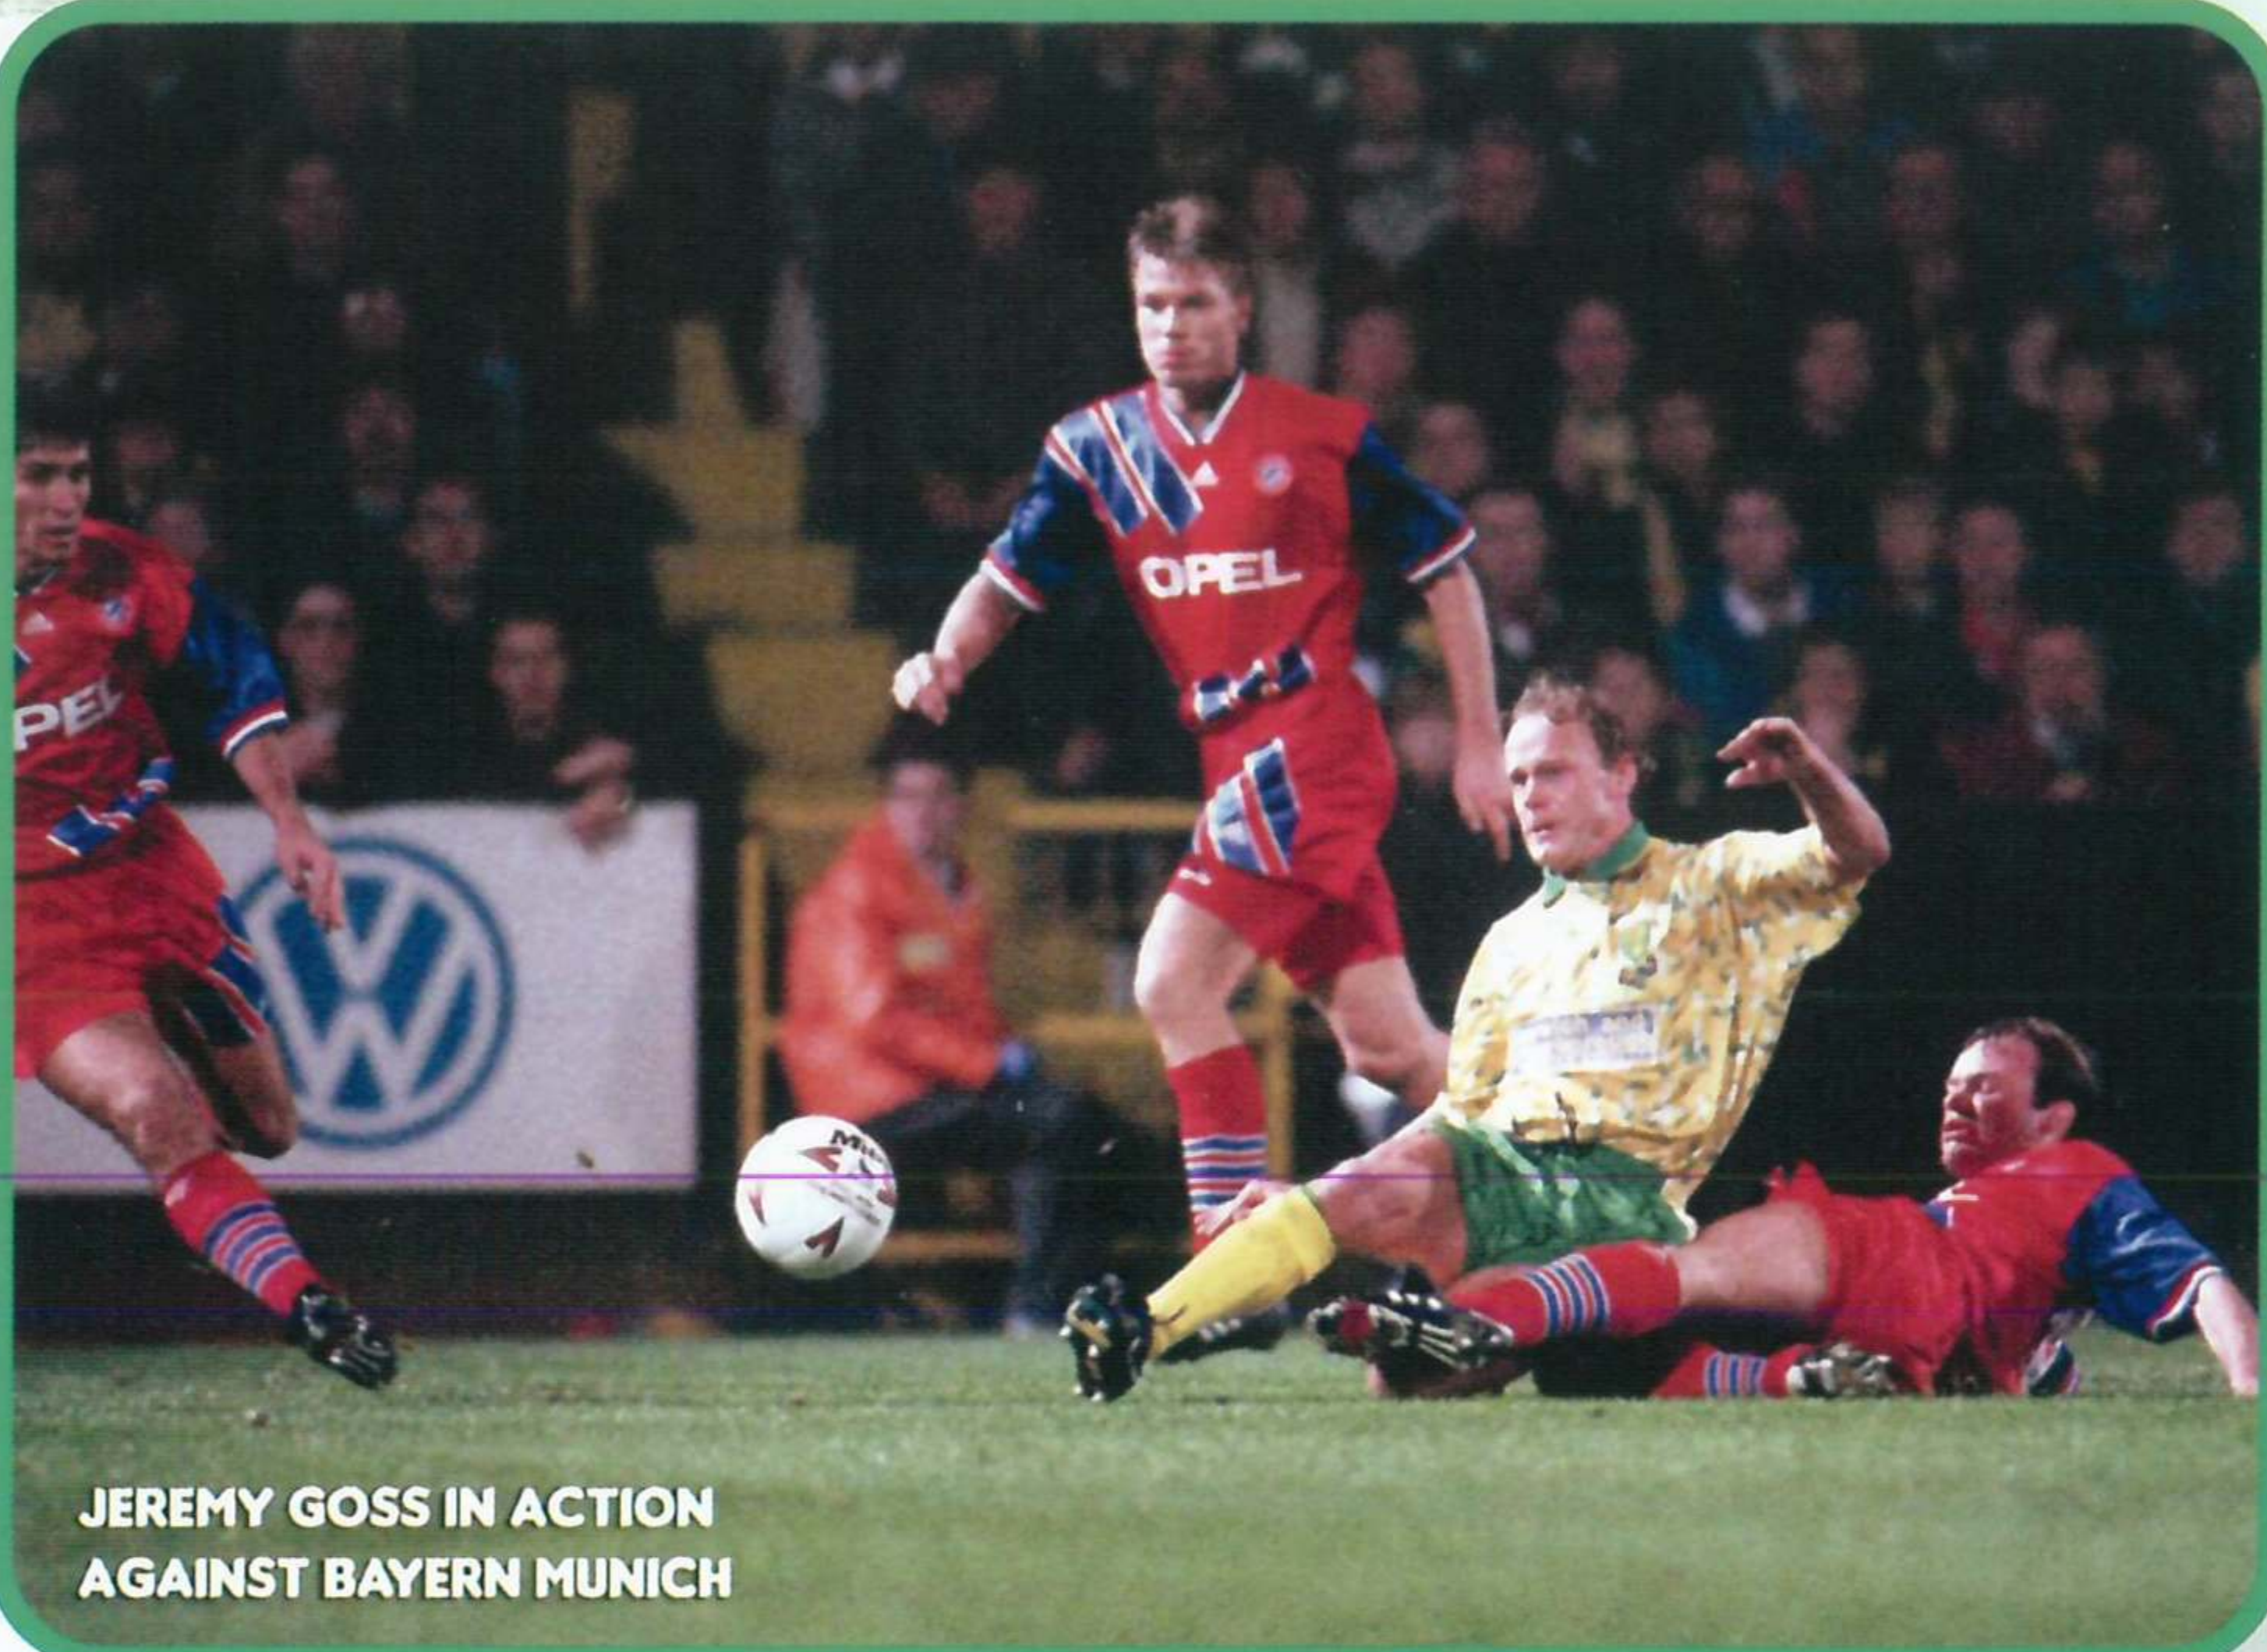

Goss told the official matchday programme: "It was a remarkable time and to everybody else Norwich overachieved, but to us as players we never did. We felt that we fulfilled our true potential. People talk about the spirit and the unity of that side but let's not forget we were very good footballers. When you consider the likes of Ian Crook, Chris Sutton, Bryan Gunn, Mark Bowen and Ruel Fox, then you're talking about some absolutely wonderful footballers.

"The success we enjoyed came as no surprise to us because we trained hard and we knew what we were capable of. To be part of the Premier League was an honour and to do so well was an amazing achievement for Norwich City Football Club. We did Britain proud with our European run and we were a very fit, strong side at the time. All the players were at the top of their game. That was 18 years ago; too many years without Norwich City reaching those heights again."

Goss was blessed with a brilliant shot and his volley against Bayern Munich was one of three wonderful efforts for which he is fondly remembered by Norwich supporters. Goss cracked home a thunderous volley in off the underside of the crossbar in a 4-0 win against Leeds United at Elland Road. More famously, he went down in history after he scored the last-ever goal in front of the Spion Kop terrace, his stunning volley handing the Canaries a 1-0 win at Anfield at the end of the 1993-94 season.

"Goss recalled: "I was very lucky in a way because all the goals were played out on Match of the Day. The best was the one at Elland Road and it was possibly the finest performance by Norwich during my time at the club.

JEREMY GOSS IN ACTION AGAINST BAYERN MUNICH

"Nine times out of ten that shot would have flown over but that went in off the crossbar, which probably made it look even better. We played some exciting stuff at Elland Road that day and to score a goal like that just capped the performance. It was far better than the goal I scored against Bayern Munich or Liverpool. Yet to score that goal at Anfield was the proudest day of my life because it was such a historic occasion. To score at the Kop end on the final day of the most famous stand in football, well it doesn't get any better than that does it? To have Ian Rush on the pitch, the legend that he was, just made it even more special. I even got Liverpool fans writing letters to me saying what a great performance it was by us. That meant a lot."

Like many former Norwich players, Goss still lives in the Norfolk area and remains a keen supporter of the club. He is a big admirer of Canaries boss Paul Lambert and is confident that the former Wycombe and Colchester can keep the club in the top flight. Lambert has emerged as one of the brightest young managers in the game after steering Norwich to successive promotions in the past two seasons.

Goss declared: "It's been an absolutely amazing achievement and Paul is a young and very exciting manager. He's a winner and he wants people around him to be winners. He's got a great backroom staff and I'm confident that Paul can keep us in the Premier League. It's going to be tough and every single game is like a cup final for Norwich. The quality of the Premier League has gone up year on year but we've got some quality players like Steve Morison and Andrew Crofts. We have a decent-sized squad and I believe we have a great chance of staying up."

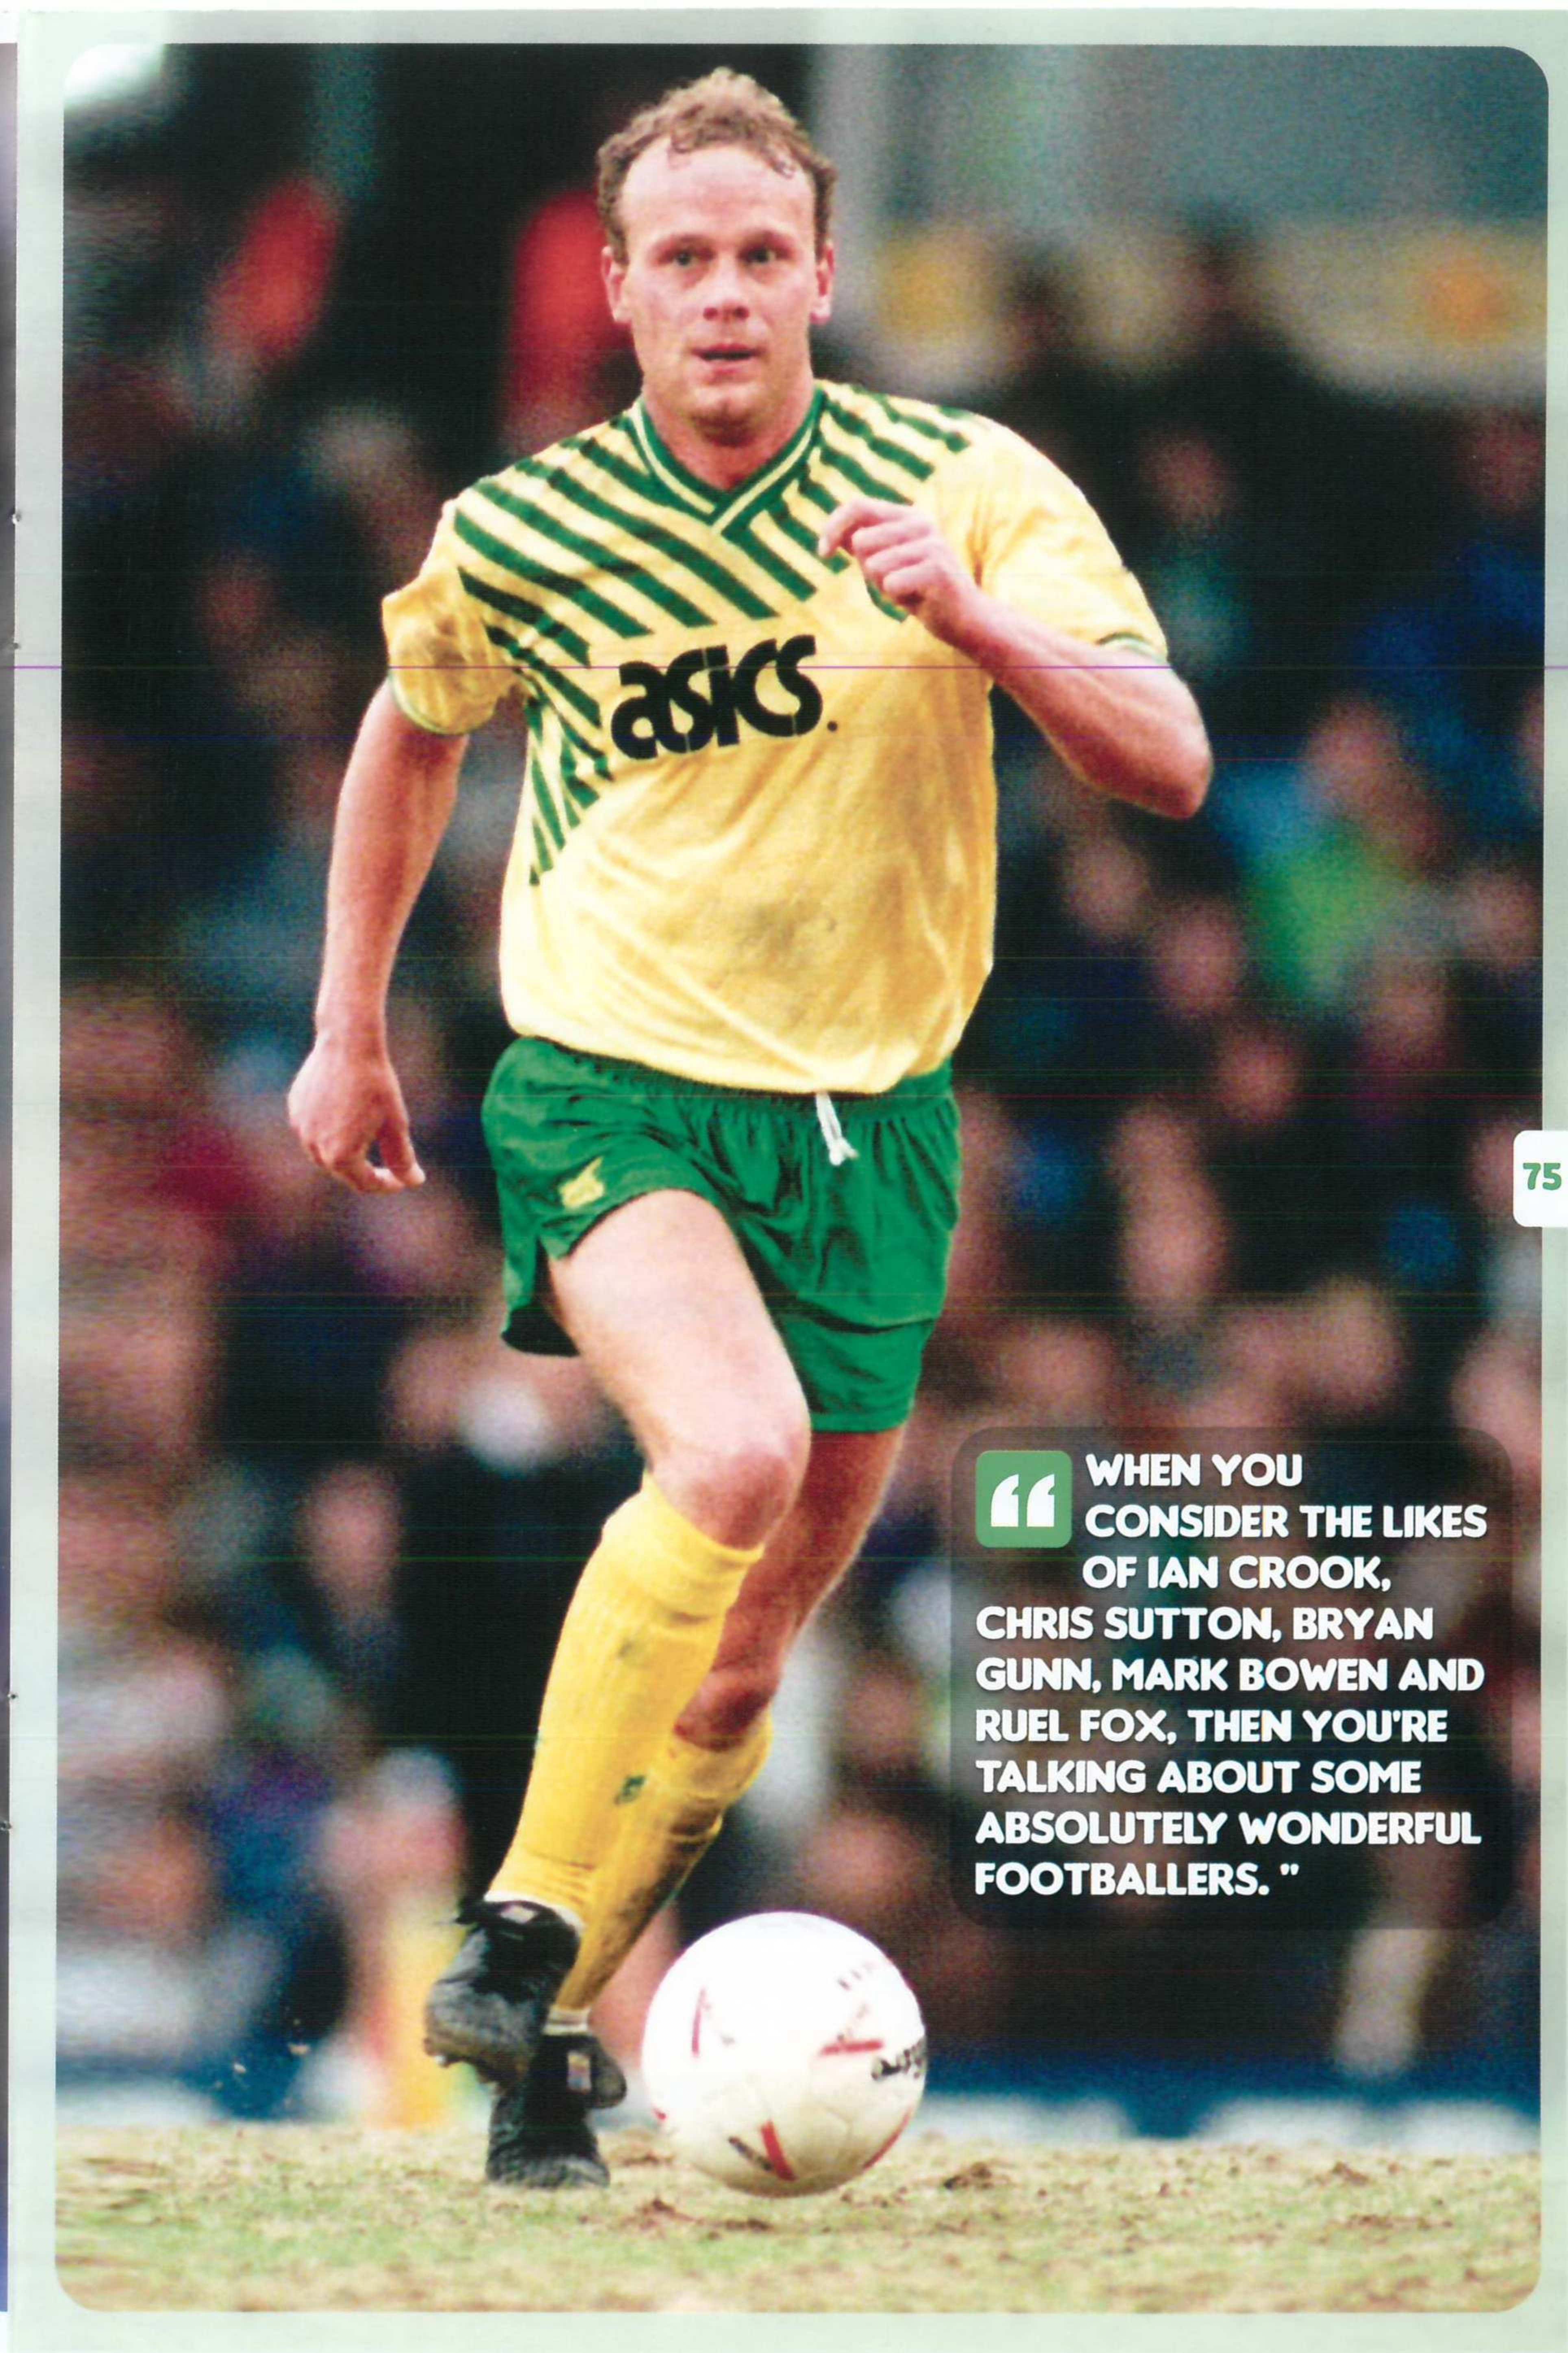

Moving on from his association with Norwich, Goss now has other interests including humorous after dinner speeches and Student Development, Leadership and Motivational programmes. He also spends time in support of the Norfolk and Norwich Association of the Blind (www.NNAB.org.uk), raising funds to provide a range of services to the Blind people of Norwich and Norfolk. This recently culminated in the 1,300 mile sponsored bicycle ride, retracing the UEFA Cup run from Norwich to Vitesse Arnhem, to Bayern Munich, to Inter Milan.

Goss added: "There's still a lot of players in the area, not just from my time at Norwich but all different eras. A lot of the old boys from my team were at the recent launch of the Cycle to Munich. We've raised a lot of money and hope to raise even more."

Goss, meanwhile, is expecting a stern test from Wanderers at the Reebok Stadium this afternoon.

He added: "Today's game is a tough one to call, it will be nip and tuck. I rate Bolton as a club and would class them in the same bracket as the likes of Blackburn, Fulham and West Brom, fighting to push into the top half of the table.

"I know Gary Megson from our time together at Norwich and with Owen Coyle there now I believe the infrastructure is in place to make Bolton a big team. Owen is clearly an excellent manager and can be the man who takes the club to the next level. But Norwich have been competitive in their games so far this season and all the fans are very much behind Paul. The Premier League is a goldmine and is the biggest and best it has ever been in terms of the financial rewards. I believe we can stay there and hopefully establish ourselves in the top flight again."

BY JENNIE KOZLOWSKI

Community appearances across the town play a big part in the weekly activities of a Bolton Wanderers first team player.

Different members of the playing squad are out and about across the borough of Bolton on a weekly basis to visit local schools, youth clubs and supporters' social evenings, as well as lending their support to a wide variety of the Bolton Wanderers Community Trust projects that are all delivered with the aim of making a huge difference to the lives of the residents of the town.

Community work carried out by the players helps to raise awareness and trigger publicity on a wide range of regional and national social issues – they make people aware of issues such as the dangers of obesity or carrying a knife. They also address social issues such as equality, and can also help to encourage people to exercise more regularly and read more.

The community visits undertaken by the first team players strongly support the work of BWCT that focuses on specific areas where football could affect greatest change – health, education, equalities and social inclusion.

The Kickz project at Castle Hill is delivered three times a week to attract young people between the ages of 12-18 and offers them a safe environment in the evening where they can develop their interests in sports under the guidance of qualified and experienced coaches at no cost as all sessions are free.

Gretar Steinsson, Ivan Klasnic and Kevin Davies all visited Castle Hill last season to find out more about Kickz. The project is designed to create routes into education, training and employment, break down barriers between the police and young people, and reduce crime and anti-social behaviour.

Other programmes delivered by the Trust and regularly supported by the first team playing squad include the SCARF project which aims to develop relationships and the general understanding of racism and Premier League 4 Sport which aims to get children from all backgrounds involved in non-traditional, club-based sports which are badminton, judo, table tennis and volleyball. Also, the Men's Health Project works with males across Bolton between the ages of 18-35 delivering sessions on employment skills, educational opportunities, healthy living and sport.

Club captain Kevin Davies has carried out an ambassadorial role for The Prince's Trust for five years and every season meets groups of young people aged between the ages of 16-24 to help them develop their self-confidence and social skills which will give them the chance to pursue the careers of their choice whilst on the 12-week team programme delivered by Greater Manchester Fire and Rescue Service.

In addition to all the individual community appearances, each season the full squad visit Royal Bolton Hospital, Bolton Hospice and Derian House in December to spend time with those who won't be spending Christmas at home and regularly turn out at Junior Whites parties to meet their young supporters.

If you know of any local school, charity, volunteer service or none-profit organisation who could benefit from the Club's community appearance programme then please contact Jennie Kozlowski at media@bwfc.co.uk

STELIOS HELPS GREECE STUN EUROPE AND WIN EURO 2004

In the summer of 2004, Greece ruled Europe after defying the odds to win the European Championships.

Although Bolton fans would have been disappointed with England's exit to Portugal in a dramatic penalty shoot-out in the quarter-final stage, many would have taken pride in seeing Wanderers' very own Stelios lift the coveted trophy after the Greeks produced a smash-and-grab performance in the final to beat the hosts 1-0.

Prior to heading-off to the Euros, the cultured midfielder had just finished his first season at the Reebok Stadium having joined on a Bosman free transfer from Olympiacos.

That deal turned out to be a fantastic piece of business as Stelios eventually completed five years at the club, in which the club twice qualified for the UEFA Cup and also reached the Carling Cup final.

Whilst at the Reebok, Stelios forged himself a reputation for chipping in with big goals at big times, including a goal of the season contender against Norwich in 2004/05.

Now, aged 37, Stelios heads the Greek Professional Footballers' Association.
